Marlboro Gets $36,400 Reorganization Aid; Education Bill Approval Assured

Marlboro Central School will be one of 11 school districts in the state to share $1.5 million in special aid for reorganization in a new law signed by Governor Rockefeller Tuesday.

The Associated Press said the school bill was among 45 measures, mostly of a minor nature, that the governor signed into law Tuesday. He vetoed 9 others.

The bill permits the payment of additional operating expense aid to school districts that reorganized between July 1, 1962, and July 2, 1965.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. D. Clinton Dominick, R-Newburgh, and Assemblyman George M. Michaels, D-Auburn, was aimed at aiding schools that changed operations before state-

Plan More Talks on Viet Rift

SAIGON AP — South Viet Nam's military government and its Buddhist opponents agreed today on a temporary formula for a political compromise. But Buddhist splinter groups continued rioting and there were threats of further human sacrifices.

After two meetings with representatives of the Buddhist Unified Church, the regime agreed to add 10 civilians to the existing 10-man military directorate.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhist leaders resumed their peace talks with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military junta today despite a mysterious grenade attack on one of the leading monks involved.

While the resumption of the negotiations seemed a hopeful sign in South Viet Nam's political crisis, rampaging student mobs sacked and burned the deserted U.S. consulate and at least three other buildings in the retelling Buddhist stronghold of Hue.

3 U.S. Jets Lost
In the war, U.S. pilots dodged half a dozen Soviet missiles in a near-record day of attack on North Viet Nam but conventional groundfire knocked down three American jets. The assault on the Communist north included the heaviest single raid of the war, an 18-missile strike against the Yen Bai storage complex along the Red River 80 miles northwest of Hanoi.

An Air Force spokesman said more planes were sent against Yen Bai than any other individual target since the raids on the north began Feb. 7, 1965. He reported 25 anti-aircraft gun pits and 72 buildings destroyed and 44 buildings badly damaged.

The resumption of the negotiations in Saigon's Gia Long Palace between the junta and monks of the powerful Buddhist Institute followed a public declaration by Ky to carry out his promise to add civilians to the 10-man ruling directorate.

Appoints Hogan To Board Post

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan today announced the appointment of John J. Hogan of 47 German Street as a member of the Municipal Civil Service Commission. He will succeed Charles M. King, incumbent commission president, who term has expired.

Hogan's appointment became effective today and will expire on June 1, 1972. It is expected the commission will meet soon to elect a president.

ON THE WAY—The Surveyor spacecraft appeared well on the way toward its soft-landing rendezvous Thursday with the moon in the Ocean of Storms area of the lunar surface.

Surveyor 1 Streaking For Thursday Landing

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 1, streaking toward a landing on the moon Thursday morning, carries not only a camera but this nation's hopes of making the first touchdown gentle enough for men to survive.

Surveyor is due to settle on a broad equatorial plain at 2:17 a.m. EDT and begin radioing pictures which will help scientists pick the safest areas for Apollo astronaut landings later in this decade.

If everything works, Surveyor will fire retro-rockets to break its approach speed from 6,100 miles an hour to 3½ miles an hour, then drop gently the final 14 feet with less impact than a parachutist feels on earth.

The Soviet Union's ball-shaped Luna 9, which radioed the first pictures from the lunar surface last Feb. 3, apparently was ejected from a carrier vehicle at a height of several hundred feet.

Information and pictures recently released in Moscow indicate the fall probably would have been fatal to an unprotected human, said Dr. Thomas Vrebalovich, of Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which is guiding Surveyor on its quarter-million-mile flight.

Dr. Vrebalovich, a Surveyor project scientist, said in an interview that the Luna 9 technique was similar to one abandoned by the U.S. space agency years ago.

No Word on Luna
He referred to the early Ranger shots, originally planned to drop instruments imbedded in balsa wood balls just before they crashed into the moon. The balls later were left off the spacecraft to allow more room for television cameras which radioed back history's first closeups of the moon as they plunged to destruction.

The Soviets have never disclosed just how Luna 9 was landed, but Dr. Vrebalovich said it was obvious the 200-pound ball carried no retro-rockets.

Monitoring of Soviet signals indicated that the carrier vehicle fired a retro-rocket about 40 miles above the lunar surface and shortly afterwards ejected the crushproof ball, which popped open on impact and started a camera, he said.

Proposals to establish a municipal law department "deserve careful consideration," Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan told newsmen today, and he added the plan should be worked out along with the Republicans "so that it will not be a political issue."

The proposal was advanced Tuesday by City Corporation Counsel Vernon Murphy, who urged the setting up of a law department "commensurate with the legal problems now facing the city."

Cites Need
Commenting on a law department plan, Mayor Garraghan said something has to be planned for the future, and he added "there is no question but what it is needed."

Murphy said in letters to Mayor Garraghan, Francis R. Koenig, president of the Common Council, and the chairman of the Council's Finance and Ways and Means Committees, the present City Charter, which provides for a single, part-time corporation counsel, "without clerical help," was "unrealistic."

The incumbent corporation counsel noted in his letters that if the City Charter is not (Continued on Page 28, Col. 8)

Extends Measure

The measure has been an annual piece of business since the 1963 court reorganization. Critics of dual jurisdiction, including the League of Women Voters, contend that the Family Court should have sole responsibility for adoption proceedings.

The governor also approved bills that: — Extend state war scholarships to the children of Viet Nam veterans. The scholarships, for four or five years, provide an annual stipend of $400.

— Require sideview mirrors be put on all automobiles, beginning with 1968 models. Present law requires only an interior rear-view mirror.

Under the school - aid bill, these districts will receive aid: Newburgh, $478,300; Johnson City, $142,500; Genoa, $81,000; Hyde Park, $169,700; Moriah, $62,000; Malone, $122,000; Saranac Lake, $39,800; Fonda-Fultonville, $82,500; Port Jervis, $118,700; Oswego, $174,800, and Marlboro, $36,400.

Signature Assured
In other legislation, Gov. Rockefeller's signature was assured today for a measure that would increase state aid to schools by $102.3 million.

Passage of the bill by the Legislature Tuesday capped an agreement reached last week between the Democratic - controlled Assembly and the Republican-ruled Senate.

The aid measure swept to unanimous approval in both houses. The action climaxed more than two months of haggling over the bill, which will raise (Continued on Page 28, Col. 6)

Wilson Hopeful For Bill Passage To Save 'Olana'

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Ulster County said today he is most hopeful that the State Legislature will pass the measures necessary to preserve the "Olana" estate in Columbia County, the home of the late artist, Frederic E. Church, who achieved world-wide fame for his spectacular paintings of both North and South America, and was one of the leading exponents of the "Hudson River School" of American artists.

According to the Ulster County Assemblyman, legislation was introduced this year by Senator Lloyd A. Newcombe of Catskill and Assemblyman Clarence D. Lane of Windham to authorize the state to acquire the huge "Olana" estate and all of its contents, including almost 1,500 of Church's paintings and drawings, and to make "Olana" a historic landmark which would be open to the public.

SECOND DISAPPOINTMENT — Frustration was the word today at Cape Kennedy, Fla., as the Gemini 9 mission was canceled again because of last-minute problems with the spacecraft. It was the second time in a row for Astronauts Eugene Cernan, left, and Thomas Stafford, who were previously frustrated on May 17. Smiles evident in this photo turned to frowns with the word of the cancellation. (NEA Telephoto.)

Expect Brick Decision By Board on Thursday

A special meeting of Ulster County Board of Supervisors has been called for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at which time it is expected a Hudson River brick will be recommended for use in construction of Phase I of Ulster Community College.

A meeting was held this morning at the office of the architect, Augustus R. Schrowang and Associates, attended by representatives of the board of trustees of the college, members of the Board of Supervisors Building and Sites Committee and Ellis Rowlands, director of Community College Planning, State University of New York, to discuss state approval of a brick.

Will Approve Choice
Rowlands, it is reported, will approve any brick which meets the specifications and has the approval and support of the college architect.

It is reported that one of the samples submitted met the specifications and that while samples of another brick submitted met specifications, brick of that company selected at random from the yard failed to meet requirements. It is expected that brick manufactured by Powell and Minnock at Coeymans will be recommended for approval.

A meeting of members of the Board of Supervisors Building Committee, with college trustees and the architect was held Tuesday afternoon at the County Office Building at which time the brick situation was thoroughly discussed. As a result of that session the meeting with the SUNY representative was called for this morning.

While it is expected the Board of Supervisors will approve the use of Powell and Minnock brick, and the architect will go along with that recommendation, it is also known that the architect stands by the original selection of Virginia brick as best for the job.

today stated that his office would go along with the recommendations made by the Board of Supervisors in Resolution 71, which directs the use of Hudson Valley brick if such brick meets the requirements, Schrowang stated that the Virginia-made brick was originally selected as the best product available for the job but that the architect would make recommendations Thursday night to the Board that Hudson Valley yard brick be used provided it passes the architect, state and federal requirements.

Mediation Lags In News Strike; Eye Rival Union

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans by seven newspapermen to form a rival union to the striking Newspaper Guild have disrupted negotiations between the Guild and the World Journal Tribune Inc.

The newspapermen said Tuesday they plan to organize another union "restricted to editorial people only." They claimed the backing of 75 per cent of the city's editorial members on newspapers, but a guild official disputed the figure.

State Meeting
The dissidents scheduled a union organizing meeting today. The Guild represents advertising, business office, circulation and maintenance employees, as well as editorial personnel.

The dissidents say the Guild — a local of the AFL-CIO American Newspaper Guild — is "bookkeeper-oriented." They say they look "in disgust" at the 35-day-old strike against the World Journal Tribune Inc.

Chief mediator David L. Cole said the breakdown announcement "put a damper on all negotiations" and "caused an uproar" at the bargaining table.

Will Try Again Friday, Target Trouble Hinted

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The hard-luck Gemini 9 flight was postponed two days today because of last-minute problems that prevented the Titan 2 rocket from being launched.

The space walk and rendezvous mission was rescheduled for 9:39 a. m. EDT Friday.

The flight was called off at 12:40 p. m. as the astronauts, Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan, waited out the countdown while sealed in their cramped Gemini 9 spacecraft atop a nine-story tall Titan 2 rocket.

The target satellite which the astronauts were to chase across the sky had been fired into space at 11 a. m. from another launching pad 6,000 feet away.

"I just can't believe it," said Cernan, a 32-year-old space rookie disappointed for the second straight time in his goal to take the longest space walk in history.

Earlier, when test conductor Len Schull informed the astronauts in their spacecraft of the successful orbit of the target, Stafford said: "Good show, Len."

Schull replied: "We know if you stuck there long enough we would get you a good one." after an on-time launch of the target ship at 11 a. m. EDT a light blinked on, indicating that the shroud separated as planned with the cutoff of the Atlas booster engines. The light should have remained on, but blinked out shortly afterward.

High Probability
Mission director Schneider said, however, that the blink of the light indicated a "high probability" that the shroud fell away.

Last Oct. 25, Stafford and astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. had their Gemini 6 flight postponed when the Agena target exploded in space.

On Dec. 12, another attempt to launch Gemini 6 was wiped out when the Titan 2 engines misfired. Three days later, Gemini 6 took off and executed the rendezvous with Gemini 7.

Not Sure of Shroud
There was also a hint of trouble with the target satellite, even though it entered a near-perfect circular orbit. Ground stations were unable to confirm that a shroud covering the docking collar had fallen away as planned.

If the shroud did not come off, the astronauts will not be able to link up with the target, but will be able to carry out rendezvous missions.

Last Minute Discovery
Until they get within eyesight of the target, they will not know whether the shroud is off.

The guidance problem in the Gemini 9 spacecraft was not discovered until less than two minutes before it was to blast off on a three-day mission.

The countdown on the Titan 2 proceeded smoothly down to 1 minute, 40 seconds before lift-off. Then a hold was called and the count was recycled to three minutes, and holding when a new signal was rejected by a computer in the spacecraft.

Count Resumed Twice
The guidance signal was designed to adjust the computer so that it would steer the Titan to the proper path to begin the pursuit of the target.

The count was resumed twice in hope of sending the signal through but each time it was rejected.

In order to catch the target today, the Titan 2 would have had to have been launched in a six-minute period ending at 12:44 p. m. EDT.

Note Exile Unit Tried Cuba Entry

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A newly formed Cuban exile group says it took part in last weekend's unsuccessful attempt to infiltrate Cuba and plans to step up its activities against the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The Cuban Exile Representation — RECE — announced Tuesday it has joined with two anti-Castro groups as a coordinated movement seemed to be gathering momentum among the divided exile front.

Report Negotiations
Intensive negotiations were reported for a wide-ranging alliance that would include at least four other militant anti-Castro groups.

"Instead of going it alone, exile groups now are going to coordinate efforts," said RECE spokesman Ernesto Freyre. "Together we can accomplish our aim."

"Losing one battle does not mean you have lost the war," he said of the six anti-Castro revolutionaries who attempted to infiltrate Cuba by launch last weekend. Two were killed, two were wounded and captured and two are presumed drowned.

Freyre and other spokesmen for the new federation — composed of RECE, Commandos 1 and a faction of the 30th of November Movement — refused to discuss launching sites or any specifics of the weekend raid.

Charge Castro Plot
The Cuban government has charged that the six men intended to assassinate Castro and said the U.S. government's Central Intelligence Agency was connected with the plot.

The Cubans also charged that the launch carrying the six embarked from Marathon Key, Fla., despite a U.S. moratorium on such attacks.

May Rainfall Up 2.15 Over 1965

Records in the office of the City Engineer show that rainfall last month totaled 3.05 inches or 2.15 inches more than precipitation in May of 1965 and 2.70 inches above the total for the same month in 1964.

The total rainfall for 1966 so far was 12.60 inches or 2.08 inches above the total rainfall for the entire year of 1965 and .02 of an inch above the total rainfall for the 12 months of 1964.

The City Engineer reported that the total precipitation for May, 1965 was .90 of an inch, and during May 1964 the rainfall for the month was recorded as .35 of an inch.

The total rainfall for 1965 in Kingston was 10.32 and in 1964 the total precipitation was recorded at 12.58 inches, according to statistics in the City Engineer's office.

Washington Officials Think Prospects Good for Moon Treaty With Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. officials said today the prospects for negotiating a treaty with the Soviet Union to ban use of the moon and other heavenly bodies for military purposes appear to be good — in spite of tension between Moscow and Washington over the Viet Nam war.

The two countries are in agreement on the need for such a treaty, which also would provide for international cooperation in exploring the moon and other celestial bodies.

President Johnson had proposed May 7 that the United Nations should start early discussions of a moon treaty. The Soviet Union made what seemed to be a parallel proposal to U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant Monday. It was disclosed in New York Tuesday by Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko.

The Johnson administration welcomed the Soviet call for action and said the subject is so important that work on it should begin "without delay."

In the first comment here on the Fedorenko disclosure, White House deputy press secretary Robert J. Fleming said: "It appears to support the stand taken by the President in the May 7 statement."

A State Department spokesman said "we are encouraged by the apparently affirmative interest shown by the Soviet government in President Johnson's proposal. We believe that work on a celestial bodies treaty should begin without delay, and it is for that reason that we asked for an early meeting of the United Nations Outer Space Committee."

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said: "We note that the Soviet letter to the secretary general speaks of having this put on the agenda of the General Assembly next fall. We see no reason to wait until then to begin this important work."

U. S. officials said that, while they would have to make a detailed analysis of the Soviet proposal, they considered that it exactly paralleled Johnson's May 7 proposal.

The President, in his May 7 proposal, said the moon and other celestial bodies should be "free for exploration and use by all countries" and "no country should be permitted to advance a claim of sovereignty."

Fedorenko told a news conference Tuesday that the Soviet Union had been seeking since 1958 a treaty which would, in effect, internationalize the moon and other celestial bodies. He blamed the United States for (Continued on Page 28, Col. 8)

Medicare Enrolls 15,900 Senior Citizens in Ulster

About 15,900 persons in Ulster County over 65 have enrolled for extra medicare benefits or about 92 per cent of the county total of persons in that age group, according to District Social Security Director George J. Habernig.

According to the Associated Press the Social Security Administration reported that more than 17 million Americans—90 per cent of those eligible—paid $3 each to sign up for extra medicare benefits. The deadline for enrolling was midnight Tuesday.

Commissioner Robert M. Ball credited the high enrollment to a massive campaign to inform all people who were 65 by last Jan. 1 of their rights to become eligible for doctor bill benefits, in addition to hospital benefits, on July 1.

Ball, who said he had expected about 80 per cent of those eligible would enroll, termed the 90 per cent turnout remarkable.

The deadline was extended two months to midnight May 31 by Congress at the request of President Johnson.

The commissioner said it would be a week or two before a figure will be available on the enrollment, but he said he thinks it may be around 17.3 million.

"The total was 16.8 million as of March 31," he said. "The two-month extension of the deadline gave us the opportunity to enroll another 400,000 to 500,000."

The benefits of both the medical care insurance and the basic hospital insurance under medicare became effective July 1 and the monthly medical care insurance fee of $3 per person (Continued on Page 28, Col. 7)

Dirksen Casts Shadow on Fate Of CR Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen said today no compromise will lessen his opposition to the housing provision of President Johnson's civil rights bill.

Thus Dirksen cast a dark shadow over the fate of the administration's measure as the White House Conference on Civil Rights gets under way. The Senate Republican leader was a key figure in the passage of previous civil rights legislation.

In a separate interview, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield frankly conceded that if Dirksen sticks to his contention that a provision banning racial discrimination in the sale or renting of housing is unconstitutional, there may be no civil rights bill in this session.

"We've got to have the votes of those he represents on the Republican side to get Senate action on the measure," Mansfield said.

The Montana Democrat, along with other Democratic congressional leaders, attended a briefing with the President Tuesday and later predicted Congress should be able to pass most, if not all, of the administration's legislative program by Labor Day.

Asked if he was satisfied with the congressional pace thus far, Mansfield said, "Oh, yes." There was, however, no mention of the administration's civil rights bill.

Nickerson Urges Public Protector

NEW YORK (AP) — A plan to give Nassau County the first Ombudsman, or public protector, in the United States and the first in local government in the world has been launched by County Executive Eugene Nickerson.

Nickerson proposed Tuesday that the office be created to protect the 1.4 million people in the county from "inefficiency, maladministration, arrogance and abuse on the part of government."

Pending establishment of the office, Nickerson named former Judge Samuel Greason to the vacant post of Commissioner of Accounts and instructed him to serve as public protector.

The formal office, if established, would be patterned after the Ombudsman created in Sweden in 1809 and later adopted by all Scandinavian countries and New Zealand. No such office has been set up in the United States, however, or anywhere in the world in local government.

The plan must win approval of the county Board of Supervisors and the public in a November referendum to be established. Nickerson, who is running for the Democratic nomination for governor, said he did not consult the Republican-controlled board before making his announcement.

If elected governor, Nickerson said he would "seek approval of similar people's representative in our state government."

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON, AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Economists are more worried today about inflation than about unemployment and poverty. And economists hired by business firms are more worried than are those who teach in universities.

Divided on Opinions

Most of the corporate group is against government wage-price guideposts, while the professors are evenly divided on the issue.

These are conclusions drawn from replies of 340 university economists in 46 states and 220 economists employed by business firms in 29 states to questionnaires asked by the economic research division of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York.

Inflation is the most pressing economic problem now in the opinion of 54 per cent of the business group and 51 per cent of the teachers. But 25 per cent of the academic economists thought poverty more important now, against 8 per cent of the corporate group. Balance of payments deficits were voted the most pressing by 19 per cent of the business economists, against 9 per cent of the teachers. Only 2 per cent of each group thought unemployment the prime bogeyman.

Inflation is already under way, in the opinion of 94 per cent of the business economists, and 40 per cent of them think reduced federal spending would be the best way to contain it, with 28 per cent voting for higher taxes.

But of the 86 per cent of the professors who see inflation already here, only 27 per cent favored reduced federal spending and 34 per cent plunked for higher taxes.

Against Interference

Of the 60 per cent of the business group opposing wage-price guideposts, 52 per cent did so because it meant too much interference in the market and 32 per cent because other ways of controlling the price level seemed better. Half of the university teachers opposed the guideposts, with 44 per cent of these objectors favoring other ways, and 42 per cent condemning government interference.

The more extreme backers of the New Economics—those who say that the business cycle is dead because of new techniques—found few adherents in either the academic or corporate groups. The Business economists lined up 95 per cent for the view that the up-and-down business pattern is still with us, and so did 93 per cent of the university men.

The groups split on the conduct of the government's war on poverty. A majority in both camps favored the idea in general. But 56 per cent of the business economists disapproved the direction the war has taken so far, while 57 per cent of the teachers approved.

Cuban Airlift Brings 25,000 Exiles to U. S.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The airlift from Cuba, six months old today, has brought nearly 25,000 voluntary exiles to the United States. It has cost American taxpayers nearly $10 million.

Almost unnoticed, Cubans arrive at the rate of 1,000 weekly. Nearly two-thirds of them fly on to other U.S. cities to start life anew. The others join the Miami exile colony of more than 100,000.

Will Go to New York

Attractive Angela Benitez Escaluna, 36, waiting at Freedom House, where refugees live until their resettlement airplane comes, said she would join two sons, 17 and 14, in New York.

"I haven't seen them in four years," said the mother, cradling another son, 4 months old, in her arms.

"I sent them to the United States so they would not become Communists. I was going to follow, and then flights from Cuba stopped."

There has been no U.S.-Cuban commercial airline traffic since the 1962 missile crisis.

Mrs. Escaluna said her husband had remained in Cuba "so he wouldn't lose his job while he had to support the baby, but we hope to get him here."

Cubans Lose Jobs

Cubans usually are fired after they ask to leave the country and often must wait a long time for their turn to leave, refugees report. When Cubans depart, they must leave behind all belongings.

Also at bustling Freedom House, Zaida del Toro, 7½ months pregnant, beamed: "My child will be an American citizen."

With her were her husband, Reinaldo, 42, and their three sons, 6, 7 and 13. The family headed for New York, where relatives live.

Del Toro's explanation of why he had left Cuba was typical of the refugee stream: "We didn't want our children to become Communists. There is no free Cuba. Also, there isn't much to eat. Except for three-fourths pound of meat a week, we had been living mostly on sweet potatoes and peas."

Cost $400 Each
U.S. officials estimated the airlift had cost at nearly $400 per exile. This includes chartering the plane and getting the newcomers settled. Normally there are two flights each week day.

Say Gum Disease Is Second Only To Common Cold

NEW YORK (AP) — "Your gums should be as tough as a callus on your hand," said the dentist. "But most people don't know that yet."

Partly for that reason, Americans are victimized by a galloping, costly epidemic of gum disease, made all the more worful because it can be stopped, and it can be prevented.

Effects Teeth

Second only perhaps to the common cold in the millions of victims claimed, this saboteur is periodontal disease, meaning an affliction of the gums and bone and other tissues around the teeth.

In its major form, periodontal disease begins as gingivitis — inflammation of the gums — but then can progress to destructive periodontitis, sometimes called pyorrhea.

A red-streaked toothbrush may be one early sign of gingivitis. Irritated gums become swollen and red, and retreat a bit from the teeth. Gums bleed easily. But they usually do not hurt, so it's easy to ignore this beginning of an insidious process.

As the disease progresses, little open pockets form between gums and teeth. They fill with food particles, with calculus or "tartar," and with germs. Inflammation spreads, reaching down to the roots of teeth. Gums recede. Tiny fibers of tissue anchoring the teeth break down, and bony tissue clamping the roots of teeth dissolves. Teeth loosen, and periodontitis is taking its full toll.

Dentist Can Help

But the dentist can intervene before this all happens, and can act sooner if people are aware of danger signals of what is happening.

Teeth that fail to meet evenly when food is chewed set up uneven pressures and shocks adding to the injurious process.

In early stages, removal of the calculus and treatment of minor inflammation, polishing of teeth and adjustment of the "bite" can halt the process.

With more advanced disease, the dentist must remove the pockets of infection. He may have to recut the gumline surgically, re-forming it to fit the teeth more snugly. He may have to operate on bone tissue itself, correcting pockets stretching into the bony area, correcting bone deformities to re-establish healthy conditions between gums, teeth and supporting structures.

He Should Know

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — "Children keep you young," said John McNaught, 50, whose 22nd was born four days ago.

"It's amazing that we are such a happy family because we really live in appalling conditions," said McNaught. "For one thing, we don't even have a bathroom. The children have to be washed in the kitchen sink."

McNaught and his wife Margaret, 45, were married 30 years ago. Their 20 surviving children include 9 girls and 11 boys and range from Mary, 28, to David, 4 days.

The four eldest daughters are married.

Then — as every person who has undergone corrective steps knows so well — prevention lies mainly with the individual, through good habits of oral hygiene.

Careful Brushing

This means careful attention to brushing the teeth — and brushing the gums as well — preferably after each meal. It means special care to remove food debris, and the natural or unnatural architecture of teeth and gums may call for extra steps with dental floss or special toothpicks and rinsing, according to a dentist's advice. It calls for massaging or exercising the gums to keep them strong, tough and healthy, and regular consultations with the dentist for early removal of new calculus, or correction of other hazards.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Wednesday, June 1, the 152nd day of 1966. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1813, Captain James Lawrence, mortally wounded, cried, "Don't give up the ship!" This came as he was taken from the deck of his American frigate, Chesapeake.

In 1792, statehood was granted to Kentucky.

In 1796, Tennessee was admitted to the Union.

In 1942, a giant armada of British Royal Air Force planes from Britain bombed the German industrial city of Essen.

In 1945, U.S. planes dropped about 3,900 tons of fire bombs on the Japanese stronghold of Osaka in a daylight raid.

In 1946, the Navy revealed the development of the so-called doodle-bug, a device carried by planes to detect the presence of submarines under water.

Ten years ago — It was announced that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had resigned. Molotov was an old Bolshevik, a hold-over from the Stalin regime. Western observers were not surprised at his resignation.

Five years ago — The ground caved in under a Parisian suburb, killing at least 20 persons and destroying at least 50 homes and apartment buildings.

One year ago — President Johnson at a news conference defended the U.S. action of sending troops to Santo Domingo at the outbreak of a disorderly crisis in the Dominican Republic.

Army to Ask $1.8 To Improve Drum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army plans to ask Congress for $1,869,000 next year to improve facilities at Camp Drum, N.Y., near Watertown.

Maj. Gen. William Shuler, director of installations, reported on plans for the camp Tuesday before the House Armed Services Committee.

Under questioning by Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., Shuler said the request for the funds would be in the Army budget for the 1967-68 fiscal year. He said the service had more urgent needs this year.

Stratton, of Amsterdam, said Shuler's announcement of plans for the camp represented recognition of the post's "importance" as a training facility.

The camp is used to train Army Reserve and National Guard units.

The average farm in North Carolina is about 68 acres in size.

Progress Report Given On Appalachian Roads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department reports that construction has begun on 116 miles of highway and local access roads under the Appalachian Highway Program.

In its first report on road construction in the program, the department's Bureau of Public Roads said Tuesday that right-of-way acquisition was underway on another 355.5 miles of roads and highways.

The Appalachia plan authorized $840 million over six years for construction of 2,350 miles of highway and 1,000 miles of local access roads in 12 states, including New York and Pennsylvania.

In addition, the bureau said that, by the end of the first quarter, construction had begun on 76 miles of the 2,251 miles of highway being considered for improvement.

It added that preliminary engineering was underway on another 330 miles and location of an additional 196 miles had been approved for improvement.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 1, 1966

U. S. SOUL-SEARCHER

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has been saying some extremely thoughtful things of late.

In Montreal, speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, he roamed over such matters as the real bases for peace in this world, the uses of military and economic power, the challenge of the merging nations, bridge-burning between us and China.

He endorsed the idea that the inequities of the present Selective Service system be remedied by asking every young person to give one or two years of service to his country in some capacity.

The man who his critics allege has a computer where his heart should be waxed philosophical over the nature of man:

"... a rational animal—but with a near infinite capacity for folly. ... He draws blueprints for Utopia but never quite gets it built. In the end, he plugs away obstinately with the only building material really ever at hand: His own part-comic, part tragic, part-cussed but part-glorious nature."

These are not the words of an unfeeling efficiency expert. Nor are these:

"Coercion, after all, merely captures man. Freedom captivates man."

In Pittsburgh a few days later, McNamara said something that should be posted on the wall of every classroom in the country:

"Let us be perfectly clear about our principles and our priorities. This is a nation in which the freedom of dissent is absolutely fundamental."

Even as he spoke, anti-Viet Nam war pickets marched and chanted outside the building.

Can anyone imagine the secretary's counterpart in the Kremlin, or anywhere else in the Communist world, talking in this manner about war and peace, the nature of man, the necessity of dissent? For that matter, can anyone imagine the picketing?

It is good to criticize ourselves for our collective faults and failings, to expose our mistakes and constantly reassess the direction of our policies and programs—in short never to cease our national soul-searching.

But we also need to be reminded once in a while that there is a fundamental difference between totalitarian and democratic societies. It is a difference measured by the ideals each society cultivates, the degree of human liberty each affords, the demands for informed responsibility each makes on its citizens, the scope for the realization of individual aspirations each allows.

Not least of all, it is a difference that is apparent in the type of leaders each produces and the kind of words they can say. Thank you, Mr. McNamara, for reminding us. Now, about the mess in Viet Nam.

A doctor warns of a world over-populated with senile oldsters. If people start worrying about that, too, the population may age even faster than he foresees.

President Johnson thinks there'll be no tax increase soon. Taxpayers might be even better pleased if he'd come right out and say it.

LBJ champions election law reform—thus disproving the canard that the only election change he favors is an increase in the number of Democratic votes.

GOODBYE, MAGINOT LINE

The end run achieved by the mobile Nazi panzer divisions at the start of World War II immediately outmoded France's elaborate Maginot Line fortifications. The French have taken quite awhile to accept the verdict, however. They have just gotten around to officially conceding that the complex of forts, observation posts, gun shelters, tunnels and whatnot is not worth maintaining.

The Maginot Line is a classic example of the truism that generals tend to fight the last war instead of the present one — at least until they bump into the hard facts of military development since the last war. Though carefully planned and constructed, it proved to be useless against the invaders it was meant to repel.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

THE BIRTH OF A NEW MONSTER?

The Rural Electrification Administration was established back in 1935, during the heyday of the so-called First New Deal. It had virtually everybody's blessing at the time. With the big privately owned electrical utilities under attack because of Insull-type financial pyramids, investment funds just weren't forthcoming to build new generation and transmission facilities to serve the farmer at the forks of the creek. In the depression days of the early Thirties it looked as if the farmer would have to depend forever on the kerosene lamp for his lighting unless government were prepared to come to the rescue.

All this, however, was thirty years ago. Since 1936, when the Rural Electrification Administration began its operations, rural electrical cooperatives have grown like so many green bay trees. The REA has lent some $4.7 billion of government money at 2 per cent to finance these cooperatives, which pay no federal taxes. Originally, a Rural Electric cooperative was supposed to serve a place of 1,500 population or less. But the population limitation has long since been forgotten, for the population explosion has hit virtually every part of America. The REA, which is still engaged in its own form of empire building, now lends money to beg electrical suppliers merely because once, years ago, they came within the 1,500-customer limitation.

REA money comes from the Treasury on notes payable in forty years, and Congress has come through periodically with a new loan authorization. This poses a problem for a deficit-wary Lyndon Johnson, who has apparently decided to get REA off his back by creating a special "authority" to provide for its financing outside the regular budget. Accordingly, two bills have been proposed to create a Federal Electric Bank that would take over the business of lending money to electrical cooperatives. Hearings have been scheduled to start yesterday (May 31) before the House of Representatives Agricultural Committee on the proposed legislation, and if one of the other of the bills eventually becomes law there will be a new financial monster in the land.

Under the terms of the particular bill offered by Representative Poage, the Federal Treasury would supply up to a billion dollars capitalization for the proposed bank, with an authorization to raise ten billion more from debentures. This would create a bank with resources of eleven billion, which would make it the fourth largest bank in the country. Only the Bank of America ($14.9 billion), the Chase Manhattan ($12.9 billion), and the First National City ($11.9 billion) would exceed it in size. The second bill, offered by Chairman Cooley of the House Committee on Agriculture, would provide for an initial government subscription of $750 million, on which a total capitalization of $8.25 billion could be reared. Though the Cooley provisions would result in a bank somewhat smaller than the bank contemplated in the Poage bill, it would still qualify as the country's fourth largest banking institution, well ahead of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust ($6.6 billion), and the Chemical New York ($5.8 billion).

The creation by the federal government of an $8 or $11 billion institution to finance new electrical utilities would, of course, make it virtually impossible for the free enterprise system to compete in the field. Under the terms of the Cooley-Orville Freeman proposal, the Federal Electric Bank would not have to repay federal funds by any specific date, nor would it have to pay interest on the money. The bank would operate without limitation as to areas to be served by its borrowers, it would be licensed to make loans without proof of actual need, it would not be asked to worry about the possible duplication of existing facilities, and anytime its operations went in the red it would be allowed to borrow from the U.S. Treasury without limitation to cover the deficit.

The really strange thing is that the Administration is supporting the creation of a new REA bank at a time when ninety-nine per cent of the farmers happen to be served by investor-owned electrical utilities. Query: Is it Secretary Orville Freeman's idea to duplicate the facilities of the investor-owned utilities and steal their clientele with 2 per cent Federal Electric Bank money on which no federal taxes need to be paid?

Operations Is Needed To Free Adhesions

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What causes adhesions and what are the symptoms?

A—Following an abdominal operation the cut surfaces inside the abdominal cavity may stick to an adjoining structure, the inner surface of the cavity, or a loop of intestine. In most cases there are no symptoms but sometimes the adhesions form a bandlike constriction that obstructs the intestines in one or more places. Such an obstruction would require an operation to free the adhesions.

Any other abdominal symptoms are more likely to be caused by an injudicious diet or the abuse of laxatives than by adhesions. Your surgeon now has improved ways of preventing a recurrence of adhesions when an operation to free them becomes necessary.

Q—How can a person tell whether or not he has syphilis? What treatment can be given for this disease in a person who is allergic to penicillin?

A—The diagnosis of syphilis is based on finding the causative germs in scrapings of syphilitic sores and by blood tests. In addition to penicillin, the antibiotics tetracycline and chloramphenicol will cure the disease if the treatment is given early in its course.

Q—If a person has syphilis would it affect his children mentally, physically or both?

A—A man cannot transmit syphilis to his offspring directly. If he infects his wife, she will transmit it to her child unless the disease is discovered and treated—preferably before pregnancy occurs. Syphilis of the embryo or fetus often leads to miscarriage. A child born of a syphilitic mother may show signs of the disease at birth but syphilitic deafness, blindness and mental damage are not usually seen until the child is in his teens.

Q—If a blood test for syphilis is reported as non-reactive does this mean a person has had syphilis but can no longer transmit the disease to anyone else?

A—"Non-reactive" has replaced "negative" on reports from most laboratories. Such a report is rendered when a person has never had syphilis and when a person's syphilis has been cured.

Q—What is the cause and treatment of sialitis? Are there any bad after effects?

A—Sialitis is an inflammation of a salivary gland. Aside from mumps and poisoning with mercury and other heavy metals it is rarely seen. The treatment would depend on the cause and the extent of the damage would depend on such factors as the amount of poison involved and how promptly effective treatment was started.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

"Wow! Here's One That's Going Down!"

Washington News

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON — (NEA)—

Those who argue Ho Chi Minh would negotiate on Viet Nam if we could just find the right formula should have been at recent Hanoi meetings.

In these sessions, according to reports reaching Washington sources, Premier Pham Van Dong said bluntly to his fellow officials:

• "The United Nations has no right whatsoever to intervene in the Viet Nam problem."

• "U. S. ruling circles said they might discuss our four points as well as 14 or 40 points. This is deceptive talk... to confuse right and wrong, white and black... Our four point stand... admits of no bargaining."

• "The U. S. objects to our third point... which affirms that the National Liberation Front is the sole and genuine representative of the people of South Viet Nam and all questions about South Viet Nam must be... settled with the Front."

• "To object to the third point is to object to the whole four-point stand."

• "If the U. S. government really wants a peaceful settlement it must recognize the four-point stand of the North Vietnamese government, and prove this by actual deeds."

• "It must end definitely and unconditionally the bombing raids and all other acts of war against North Viet Nam."

PHAM VAN DONG went on to say that the Viet Nam war would be long and bitter. But he claimed the American people were beginning to become ashamed of the U. S. role. He said "the American people's struggle... against Johnson's war' has quickly gained in strength and scope." He said that anti-Viet war movement would further develop.

Dong also told his fellow officials that there is in the United States "a struggle... advancing toward the use of revolutionary violence." He said that struggle was for more rights and that it now has good prospects. He thought it would cause the U. S. government serious problems. He said those problems would multiply as the cost of the war in men and money increased and more people became disenchanted.

THESE ARE NOT THE WORDS of a man ready to talk reason and compromise at a bargaining table.

They are, instead, the words of a man convinced that what happened in France in the 1950s will happen in the United States in the 1960s and that a tired people will force its government to get out.

Pham Van Dong's thinking and Ho Chi Minh's are dominated by their "impossible" victory against France in 1954.

Johnson to Lay Foundation Today for Future CR Action

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, a great believer in being backed up by a broad consensus when he tries to put an idea across, lays the foundation today for a lot of future action on civil rights.

A two-day White House Conference on Civil Rights, with about 2,400 people taking part at his suggestion, opens and, when it is over, will send him a bundle of recommendations.

Called "Chief Goal"

In a speech a year ago Johnson said that trying to obtain justice for the Negro "will be a chief goal of my administration" for the years to come.

He said he would call a White House conference in the fall of 1965 — as a starter — to help the American Negro "fulfill the rights which after the long time of injustice he is finally about to secure."

He called the conference in the fall. Eight panels of civil rights workers, experts in various fields, and government officials were asked by Johnson to come up with ideas for a big White House conference this spring.

A planning council was created. Today that second conference begins.

The delegates include representatives of business, labor, all levels of government, churches, foundations, educational institutions, civil rights workers, and what the conference calls the "grass roots" of society.

The 2,400 delegates were to be divided into groups of 200 each to discuss a 100-page report which the council sent last week to all those taking part in the conference.

It contained dozens of recommendations for immediate and long-range action to bring the Negro into equal status in housing, education, economic and job security, and the administration of justice.

No Vote at Conference

This conference will not be asked to vote on the proposals but discussions and suggestions will be recorded and reflected in a report to be submitted to Johnson within a few weeks.

The chairman of the planning council — Ben W. Heineman Jr., a railroad executive — sees the conference as a jumping-off point for a full-scale involvement by private citizens as well as government officials.

He denied the goals are "pie in the sky" although acknowledging that all the measures recommended might cost billions of dollars.

One idea emphasized by the council and already proposed to Congress by Johnson is running into tough opposition there. This was the call for an unrestricted market in housing.

Should Be Big Help

In the years ahead as Johnson tries to translate into action the ideas from the council and the conference he can claim, especially to a Congress where he is bound to encounter some opposition, that the ideas didn't just spring from his administration. It will be a big help to him.

This will hold true — since the council itself already has made recommendations — even if the conference should be badly distracted or damaged by some militant civil rights groups which, for one reason or another, are antagonistic to the conference.

Tuesday the Congress of Racial Equality complained the conference is "rigged" but that it would take part to try to change the rules so that "the militant can bring forth ideas which otherwise would not be brought forth."

This was the word from CORE's national director, Floyd B. McKissick. He wants the 2,400 delegates to vote on the council's recommendations, not just discuss them.

Another civil rights group, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, decided to stay away.

Quick Quiz

Q—What was the first around-the-world voyage by any American battle fleet?

A—The voyage of the "great white fleet" of the U.S. Navy in 1907-1909. President Theodore Roosevelt had a dual plan — to give the fleet unique training and to show the world the power that had defeated Spain.

Q—Which is the earth's largest island?

A—Greenland.

The Aztecs had a primitive cigarette in the form of tobacco stuffed into a hollow reed or cane tube. Other natives of Mexico, Central America and parts of South America crushed tobacco leaves and rolled the shreds in corn husks or other vegetable wrappers. The widespread use of the cigarette in the English-speaking world dates from the end of the Crimean War, which introduced the British soldiery to Turkish cigarettes.

Confirmation Is Held at Temple; Over 450 Attend

Approximately 450 persons attended confirmation services at Temple Emanuel Sunday morning.

The confirmation class was the largest in the history of the congregation. Members were Roy Brower, Linda Field, Patricia Gerbag, Lori Gertner, Howard Halpern, Bruce Jacobs, Nelson Lohre, Elizabeth London, Robert Melton, Howard Meyer, Jinne Newman and Rose Zucker.

The class was presented with a prayer book by Mrs. Louise Greenwald, president of Temple Sisterhood; a Bible by Dr. Walter Meyer, president of the congregation; confirmation certificates by Maurice Goldberg, chairman of the Temple board of education and a scroll of the Book of Ruth by Cantor Julian Lohre, principal of the religious school.

The class presented a gift certificate to Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, the instructor during the past year.

The service was written and conducted by the confirmation class, assisted by Rabbi Eichhorn, Cantor Lohre and the temple choir.

A gala reception sponsored by the parents of the class was held in the temple social hall immediately after the service.

Two Persons Hurt As Auto Strikes Two Parked Cars

Two persons were taken to Kingston Hospital Tuesday shortly after noon when a car operated by Paula Spritzer, 60, of Mt. Marion, went out of control on Sterling Road at the F. L. Russell Corporation plant at Mt. Marion and struck two cars in which employees were eating lunch.

Injured was the operator of the car, Paula Spritzer, who received a lacerated lip and abrasions of the legs, and James G. Myers who was in one of the parked cars on the Russell parking lot. He received a left elbow, leg and abdominal injuries when he struck the steering wheel. The accident was investigated by Trooper Norman Kilfoyle of the Lake Katrine sub-station. No one was injured in the third car.

Trooper Kilfoyle reported the accident occurred at 12:10 p. m. after Paula Spritzer had lost control of her vehicle, went off the side of the highway down an embankment to the parking area and struck the Myers car head-on. She was issued a summons for failure to keep right and will be arraigned later before Justice of the Peace Calvin H. Cody of Town of Saugerties.

Canada Begins New Tax 'Take'

OTTAWA (AP) — Slightly higher income taxes for all but the lowest paid workers became effective in Canada today in an effort to rein inflationary pressures.

This is the second tax change in a year. As an example, a married man with two children, minimum deductions and a salary of $150 a week was paying $19.10 of his income prior to last July 1. Then the withholding was cut to $17.45. Today it was raised to $18.75.

There are variations by provinces, depending on how they and the national government share tax funds.

Another anti-inflation move: Corporations are paying monthly a new refundable tax amounting to five per cent of cash profits. After 18 months this money will be repaid with interest, over an extended period. The idea is to drain off money now with the hope that pressures will be easier later on.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' public affairs program Tuesday night consisted of a forthright interview with Anthony Eden, now the Earl of Avon, on his suggestions for achieving a peace in Viet Nam.

Lord Avon, now in retirement, recently wrote a book on the subject. He is familiar with the conflict since he was chairman of the Geneva Conference which 12 years ago sought to solve the problem when the French were having a difficult time there.

Favors 'Neutral Belt'

Responding to questions by correspondent Charles Collingwood, Lord Avon proposed that Laos, Cambodia, North and South Viet Nam — formerly called Indochina — be declared a "neutral belt" under an international treaty made within the framework of the Geneva Conference.

He said that while neither China nor the United States is prepared to see the other in control of Viet Nam, they might be able to agree to a neutralized Indochina.

The former British foreign minister noted, almost in passing, that the massive bombing of Britain during World War II had the effect of strengthening, rather than weakening British resistance — a sort of "David and Goliath effect," he called it.

Jean Arthur, a fine light comedienne, will be the star of a CBS comedy series next season. She will play a lady lawyer.

Since it is impossible for even a team of writers to turn out enough scripts for a full season of television programs, the script-writing assignments will be divided among a number of professionals. The problem is to give each writer an adequate fill-in on the characters.

Jay Richard Kennedy, co-executive producer of the series, has whipped up a 14-page manual which is required reading not only for the writers but for everybody else on the show.

Patricia Marshall — Miss Arthur — is a widow with a son who also is a lawyer.

"The husband she once had must have been a wonderful guy," Kennedy wrote in his handbook, "and somewhere along the line she must have come to terms with losing him. The memory of the love must linger on, for the quality of a girl is still present in her; the face of innocence seems to be hers; the breathless, tousled headed, somewhat tomboyish quality is still very much alive."

Recommended tonight: "Guilty or not Guilty," NBC, 9-10 EDT, Bob Hope Theater, drama with Pippa Scott, Leslie Nielsen and Robert Ryan.

Boy Plays, Killed By Dad's Revolver

ELNORA, N.Y. (AP) — A 4-year-old boy fatally shot himself Tuesday while playing with his father's revolver at home in this community, north of Schenectady.

He was Peter A. Nisco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nisco. The boy's mother, Dorothy, told State Police she had left her son at home under the care of his grandfather. The grandfather, who was in another room of the house, said he heard a shot and ran to a bedroom where he found the lad bleeding from a wound in his right hip.

The weapon, a .357 magnum revolver, was registered to the father, a draughtsman at the Watervliet Arsenal, troopers said.

GE Gets Contract

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — The U.S. Army Weapons Command has awarded the General Electric Co. plant here a $4,770,000 contract for the manufacture of the 20 mm. Vulcan anti-aircraft weapon.

The machinegun-like weapon, equipped with revolving barrels, is designed to be mounted on armored vehicles and is capable of firing 3,000 rounds a minute. GE announced receipt of the contract Tuesday.

Expect Million To Vote Today In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Dominicans voted today for the first time in nearly four years in general elections expected to be relatively peaceful. The aftermath was doubtful.

Slightly more than a million men and women were eligible to cast ballots during the 12 hours the polls were to be open. Unless there is a landslide for one of the presidential candidates, definite results are not expected until late Thursday.

A close race is anticipated between the major presidential contenders, Juan Bosch, leader of the Dominican Revolutionary party, and Joaquin Balaguer, of the Reformist party.

A third candidate, Rafael F. Bonnelly, is considered out of the running. He is backed by a coalition of tiny conservative parties called the Movement of National Integration.

All three are former presidents, but Bosch is the only one who got the office by a democratic election. He was ousted by the military in September 1963 after seven months in office.

Also at stake in the election are all seats in the two-house national Congress and all elective municipal offices.

The voting gives the people a chance to pass judgment on the April 1965 revolution, launched to bring Bosch back from exile and restore him to the presidency. His supporters claim American intervention thwarted a massive popular uprising that would have restored Bosch.

Opponents of Bosch and of the revolution contend that the revolt was only a local power grab that never extended beyond Santo Domingo.

Balaguer and his Reformist party were not involved in the revolt. He and most of the party leadership were in exile, but most of the revolt's opponents have now rallied behind him.

10 From India To Visit Here in Student Exchange

Mrs. William Matthews, local chairman, of the Experiment in International Living Program, announced today that 10 students from India will visit the Kingston area in July.

"The program with the Japanese students was very successful last year. We are looking forward to the four week 'home stay period,' during which we live with one another as a family," she said. Language and culture differences are overcome with love and understanding greatly developed.

This is the prime objective of the Experiment in International Living Program which was founded in 1932 by Dr. Donald B. Watt. Selected local families share their homes with boys and girls of college age. They live as a regular member of the family. The students spend approximately 10 weeks in the country, two at special language, two attending classes at a university and then four weeks "home stay period" in American homes.

Each year many groups visit other parts of the United States just as many American groups reciprocate to foreign countries. The exchange program is probably the most effective program to create understanding and good will with people of all nations.

William Few was a signer of the U. S. Constitution.

Health for All

Friendly Calories

Does exercise provide the answer to overweight? Not likely, according to a Southern Illinois University nutritionist, unless you're ready to drop everything and practically make exercising your career.

That's true particularly of people who lead sedentary lives, but it also applies to more active individuals. You might be surprised to learn how much muscular exertion is required to work off those contraband cream puffs and smuggled-in French fries. For the sake of enlightenment on the subject, Dr. Frank Konishi has compiled a "calorie activity table."

It takes about one minute of running, or four minutes of walking, he figures, to use up 19.4 calories. In other words, there's nothing wrong with helping yourself to a malted milk shake and a slice of layer cake beyond your normal calorie allotment, and then "working it off" through exercise — if you're ready to walk for two and three-quarter hours. A couple of between-meals exploits like that (858 calories per exploit) would cost you five and a half hours of walking.

Of course you could cut down the time expenditure by running for a mere hour and a half. But to get in shape for that you'd have to cut out malteds and layer cake in the first place.

Sort of makes you stop and think — except that you can't stop because you've got all that running to do. According to Dr. Konishi's calculations, even an innocent-looking hamburger and a glass of skim milk would take an hour and 23 minutes to walk off if you wanted to expend the acquired energy. If you're a little busy and want to save those 23 minutes, you could switch to a glass of beer and a slice of pizza.

Better still (assuming you really mean it about controlling your weight) would be to resist that snack-snatching impulse and keep your calorie intake within normal bounds. Exercise does benefit general health and has some effect on weight. But it takes a heap of exercise to exorcise that bulge.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by Ulster County TB and Health Association, Inc., 124 Green Street.

Dear Abby . . .

Looks Like Dad's in the Doghouse

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a 170 pound problem, and it's not my husband. (He's over 200!) It's a lovable St. Bernard who crept into my affections when she was a mere puppy of 66 pounds. Joe "surprised" me with her because HE'S always wanted a St. Bernard. There are small children in our neighborhood and I must keep the dog chained constantly or, in the spirit of playfulness, she could knock a child down and break both legs!

We live in Minnesota and it's too cold to keep her out of doors all winter, so she sleeps on our service porch. If we don't keep all the bathroom doors closed, she drinks out of the "johns." We are growing more attached to her every day, but it's like keeping a horse in the house! She has a fine pedigree, and Joe paid a good price for her, but I'm ready to GIVE her away. Abby, do you want a St. Bernard?

MARGE D.

DEAR MARGE: Thanks a lot, but no thanks. They won't let us keep live stock in our apartment. Large dogs need room to run and romp. Ask around. Perhaps someone with a ranch or farm would appreciate her. Inquire, too, at your animal shelter. They are in touch with people who want pets, and all prospects are thoroughly investigated. Your husband may be a good Joe, but HE belongs in the doghouse.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 17 and my boy friend is 19. He got me a pair of shoes for my birthday and my daddy made me give them back he said it wasn't proper for a girl to accept a present like shoes from a fellow. I have been going with this boy going on five months, and I can't see why it's wrong to accept a pair of shoes from him.

Lots of girls get sweaters from their boy friends. I know it wouldn't be proper to let a guy buy me underwear, but what's wrong with shoes?

NO SHOES

DEAR NO SHOES: Wearing apparel which can be classified as "necessities" (and shoes fall into that category) are an improper gift from a boy to his girl friend. Your daddy is right. Put your best foot forward, honey, and let your daddy buy your shoes.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to have a nice plump girl to call my own. I am not some kind of nut, either. I am a normal, fairly intelligent college-educated man, 32 years of age. Every girl I know either mixes powder with water and calls it "lunch," or else she skips lunch entirely and eats a dry cracker that looks like a dog biscuit.

I long for the good old days when you could take a girl out BETWEEN meals and buy her a hot fudge sundae or a malted.

Most girls who are "watching their figures" are the only ones who are "watching" them because they are skin and bones and not worth looking at. If you run into a nice hefty gal between 22 and 32 years of age who likes to eat, but has trouble getting dates because she's so well padded, send me her name and address. It would be a pleasure to meet her. Sign this. . . "Sick of scarecrows."

State police at Ellenville reported Mark Little, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Little of Kerhonkson, was taken to Kingston Hospital about 4 p. m. Tuesday where a stomach pump was used. He had accidentally drunk the varnish and paint remover.

In Kingston Trust

WILL TAXES TAKE A SLICE OF YOUR LIFE INSURANCE?

OTHER ADVANTAGES

In addition to savings in taxes and settlement costs, a life insurance trust provides:

- Life-time financial security for your family through experienced management of the insurance proceeds and other property
- Assurance that your property will eventually go where you want it to go
- Precisely the needed amount of cash for estate liquidity
- Protection against inflation for your insurance dollars

Note to Lawyers:

In explaining our trust services, we always point out that the person's own lawyer must counsel him on all legal aspects of his estate plan, and must draft all legal instruments putting the plan into effect. In settling estates and administering trusts, it is our firm policy to retain the attorney who drafted the testator's will and represented him during his lifetime.

INSURANCE TAXABLE

The face value of your life insurance is a part of your taxable estate. Added to the value of your jointly and personally owned property, your insurance may push your estate into the higher brackets of the steeply graduated Federal estate tax. As a result, your family may gain little added benefit from your purchase of this valuable asset.

TRUST CUTS TAX

But if you put your life insurance in trust, and carefully coordinate the distribution of your other property with your life insurance arrangements, you may greatly reduce, and possibly eliminate, the tax on your estate. You will certainly eliminate any double taxation imposed on your property as it passes to your children or other beneficiaries.

Approve Record Buffalo Budget

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The Council has approved a record $107.5-million city budget for fiscal 1966-67 that calls for a $3.82 property tax increase.

The boost will raise the tax rate to $52.20 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

The current $99.1-million spending program was prepared by former Republican Mayor Chester Kowal.

The council's 11 Democrats, who voted unanimously Tuesday for the 1966-67 budget, blamed the Republican Rockefeller administration for the tax rise.

"The fundamental principle of local American government is being shattered by the impetuous Rockefeller administration," the Democrats said in a statement read by Majority Leader Stanley M. Makowski. "This devastation of our taxpayers' pocketbook is made obvious when the city of Buffalo finds itself paying millions in tax dollars to the Rockefeller administration officers, over which the people of this city have no control."

The council's four Republican members voted against the budget, proposed by Democratic Mayor Frank A. Sedita.

Chair Caning Is Feature of Flea Market June 11

A special demonstration of chair caning will be given throughout the day at the Ulster County Antique Flea Market to be held June 11 at Dietz Stadium.

Examples of furniture refinishing, chair rush work and reed work will also be shown at the educational exhibit to be conducted by Gateway Industries to acquaint the public with the type of work done by that organization.

The one-day outdoor antique show, sponsored by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health Inc., will feature the exhibits of more than 40 dealers who will offer their antiques for sale. Many treasures of yesterday will be on view.

The state bird of New York is the Bluebird.

Rosendale Wants County to Drill Village Test Well

A resolution petitioning the Ulster County Board of Supervisors to drill a test well in the Village of Rosendale was unanimously passed Tuesday night at a meeting of the Village Board in the Village Hall. Members of the board have stated that an acute water shortage has existed in Rosendale for the past three years.

The resolution noted that the Board of Supervisors has authorized the Ulster County Planning Board to drill two test wells in the county at no cost to the communities in which the wells are to be drilled.

The resolution stated that the most critical water shortage in the county has existed and still exists in the Village of Rosendale, a condition which has required the use of emergency civil defense equipment to supply emergency water to the village.

Joseph Reid, a trustee and a member of the board along with Mayor Arthur Mulligan and Joseph LaFera, another trustee, said that the water supply for the village right now is "only fair."

It was further resolved that Rosendale Supervisor Gerard DeFelicis be directed to submit the resolution to the Ulster County Board of Supervisors for adoption at its June meeting. The Rosendale Town Board meets tonight.

Bill Puts Stress On Medical Aid For Drug Addicts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House votes today on an administration bill that would shift the emphasis from punishment to medical treatment in cases dealing with narcotic addicts. Sponsors predict passage.

Rep. Robert T. Ashmore, D-S.C., the bill's floor manager, said he expected the measure to survive efforts to narrow its application.

Ashmore said the closest battle may come over a provision to permit persons 22 to 26 years old convicted of narcotics or marijuana offenses to qualify for treatment under the federal Youth Corrections Act.

Such persons now must serve the mandatory five-year prison sentence for narcotics offenders.

Guidance . . .

reason is that the target satellite will not be in position for a pursuit until Friday morning.

Fourth Disappointment

The space agency will have six minutes to get the Gemini off the ground the first time Friday morning. If that doesn't work, it will have 35 more minutes beginning at 11:15 a. m. the same day.

For Stafford and Cernan, it was the second disappointment in 15 days. On May 17, their flight was scrubbed when an Agena target satellite failed to go into orbit.

For Stafford, it was the fifth trip up to a spacecraft cabin to await a launch, and the fourth time he has been frustrated.

Technicians Tuesday night cleared up a minor electrical problem in the Atlas and the green light was flashed to start the countdown.

To a greater degree than ever before Stafford and Cernan will exploit the techniques of rendezvous, docking and space walking pioneered on earlier Gemini missions.

The crowded flight plan for the bold journey calls for nine separate hookups with the target; three different types of rendezvous with the satellite, and a record 2½-hour space stroll by Cernan, flitting about with a rocket-powered back pack.

Throughout the three-day flight, Stafford and Cernan planned to keep tabs on the progress of Surveyor 1, the spidery spacecraft soaring toward a hoped-for soft-landing on the moon.

The camera-carrying craft is to settle gently onto a dry plain called the Ocean of Storms at 2:16 a. m. Thursday — a few hours before Cernan is to take his space walk.

Surveyor 1 is traversing a quarter-million-mile course that Stafford, Cernan and other astronauts might take within three years. The Ocean of Storms is considered a possible landing area for American spacemen.

To Combat Ideology

WASHINGTON (AP)—A privately financed organization called the "World Youth Crusade for Freedom" launches a "psychological war effort" this summer against the penetration of Communist ideology in Asia.

Tom Charles Huston, the crusade's international secretary general, said Tuesday a dozen young men and women of "impeccable academic background" and with organization experience, will be sent abroad for two months.

He said they will work with student groups and others, helping develop organizational skills to offset Communist inroads in Viet Nam, Formosa, Japan, Australia, India and the Philippines.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, former chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff; former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, former Sen. Barry Goldwater and conservative editor William F. Buckley Jr., are among those listed on the organization's advisory council.

Scores Practices

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. Philip A. Hart said today present packaging practices make "rational shopping comparisons almost an impossibility" and tend to stimulate inflation.

The Michigan Democrat, addressing the Senate in behalf of his truth in packaging bill, said it is intended to assist the housewife in comparing prices in her supermarket shopping.

Hart said the impossibility to make comparisons "may add approximately 10 per cent to the average family's food bill." He termed this "an insidious type of inflation."

"Many times the signs are hard to read — for example, the price is the same, but the 'new, improved' package contains one or two ounces less," he explained.

Asks Pay TV Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)— Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch of California has asked the Supreme Court to permit his state to ban pay television for homes.

California voters approved the ban in November 1964. But the State Supreme Court ruled the law violated the constitutional guarantee of free speech by depriving householders the right to buy programs they desired.

But Lynch said in his appeal Tuesday the law "merely prohibits a charge imposed upon persons in their homes to hear or see communications when disseminated by means of coaxial cables or through the airways" and in no way violates freedom of speech.

Capital Quotes

Korean Defense Minister Kim Sung Eun will visit U.S. defense installations around the country during his two-week tour of the United States next month.

The Interior Department says a joint program with the American Petroleum Institute will attempt to determine what kind of gasoline produces the least air pollution when burned under varying conditions.

Rep. Raymond F. Cleveland, D-Mich., has asked Congress to permit use of interstate highway funds to retire bonds used to finance construction of any part of the interstate system.

Capital Footnotes

"I do not believe there can be any compromise on the constitutional right of an individual to decide for himself to whom he wants to rent or sell his property," Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, continuing his opposition to the housing provision of President Johnson's civil rights bill.

Johnson, Advisors Confer

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson met with some of his foreign policy advisers today for what the White House described as "a discussion on NATO matters."

Agree to Halt '63 Dispute of Jakarta, Malay

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)— Indonesia and Malaysia formally agreed today to end a dispute opened in 1963 by President Sukarno in his "crush Malaysia" campaign. They decided to work toward the establishment of diplomatic relations.

Sukarno launched his campaign against the Malaysian Federation when it was formed in September 1963 of the former British colonies of Malaysia, Singapore and the Borneo states of Sarawak and North Borneo (now Sabah). Singapore has since dropped out.

The end came after three days of meetings between Deputy Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Razak of Malaysia and Foreign Minister Adam Malik of Indonesia. Malik had indicated before the meetings that the campaign had put Indonesia under economic and financial strain.

Sukarno objected to the federation, charging that it was really a British plot to maintain a colonial hold in this part of the world and that Malaysia was formed to strangle Indonesia.

Report No Major Incidents in LA As Inquest Ends

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police reported some window smashing but no major incidents in the Negro community Tuesday night after a verdict of accidental homicide in the controversial death of a Negro motorist at the hand of a white policeman.

After eight days of contradictory testimony, a coroner's jury decided Tuesday — in the longest inquest in city history — that the May 7 death of Leonard Deadwyler, 25, was accidental.

Shot By Officer

Deadwyler was shot by traffic officer Jerold M. Bova, 23, who testified that as he leaned into Deadwyler's stopped car, the vehicle lurched forward and caused him to lose his balance, pull the trigger reflexively and kill Deadwyler unintentionally.

Deadwyler's pregnant widow, Barbara, 25, testified that she and her husband were speeding to a hospital on the mistaken belief that her fifth child was coming prematurely. She said that Bova shot her husband without provocation while he was asking for a police escort.

The case quickly became a rallying cry for discontented Negroes in the uneasy South Los Angeles Negro district, stricken last August by race riots.

The riots left 34 dead and $40 million in property loss, and several incidents of violence — particularly since the Deadwyler shooting — have kept the area on a hair-trigger. Threats of further violence have been voiced since the young father was shot.

Neither Nova nor Mrs. Deadwyler was in court to hear the jury of eight men — one Negro and seven white — give its verdict. Six ruled the death accidental homicide, while two were unable to decide whether it was accidental or excusable homicide and one felt it was excusable.

Plan More . . .

saying: "The government of Viet Nam has decided to enlarge the National Leadership Committee to include representatives of mass organizations, religions and political parties."

To Make Contact

"The National Leadership Committee will make immediate contact with mass organizations, religions and political parties to define the methods of participation and enlarge scope of the committee."

Government sources said it was possible the junta would be doubled — adding a civilian representative for every military member.

Buddhist youths burned a U.S. Navy Jeep in Saigon and threatened two GIs with clubs outside the Buddhist Institute compound shortly after an unidentified young terrorist threw the grenade at the monk's car as it was entering the gate of the Buddhist youth center on the outskirts of Saigon. The grenade bounced off the side of the car and rolled underneath it.

Other monks at the gate shouted a warning. The blast caught Minh and his driver as they scrambled out of the car.

Minh was taken to a hospital, where doctors said he was in a coma and receiving a blood transfusion. The driver was less seriously injured. Foreign Minister Tran Van Do went to the hospital but was not allowed to see the wounded monk.

Buddhist Youths Gather

Almost immediately after the incident, crowds of Buddhist youths organized by Minh for antigovernment demonstrations in Saigon gathered at the youth center. Monks declared the attacking "thugs" had been the work of government henchmen.

The driver of the American Jeep fled before the mob set fire to it. Later, youths unfurled a banner over the smoking wreck saying: "Americans and Gen. Gi will have to pay for the death of Thich Thien Minh." They either mistakenly believed he had died or deliberately made the claim to incite further violence.

Two American soldiers passing the Buddhist Institute in a motorized pedicab were ordered out of the vehicle and chased down the street by a crowd of club-wielding young men. The Americans took refuge in a nearby headquarters of the Allied Military Assistance Command.

A little later the youths pulled a Vietnamese plainclothesman off his motor scooter, beat him severely and dragged him inside the enclosed compound.

House Will Act On $17.5 Billion Military Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)— With a feud between Congress and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as a backdrop, the House starts action today on a budget-busting $17.5-billion military authorization bill for research and equipment.

Four hours of debate were to precede a final vote on the bill, which exceeds the administration request by $31 million.

When it added the funds the administration didn't want, the House Armed Services Committee sharply criticized McNamara and proclaimed a "new era," saying Congress must share in decision making on military matters.

The committee and McNamara are at odds over spending in three areas, nuclear-powered surface ships for the Navy, a new, manned bomber and an antimissile missile system.

Students, Police Clash

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP)—Hundreds of leftist students clash with riot police in front of a U.S. Navy base here tonight. It was the fourth day of demonstrations against a visit by the U.S. nuclear submarine Snook.

About 10,000 left-wingers paraded past the base shouting "Go Home Yankee" and "Get out of Viet Nam."

Many students and police were injured.

It was the wildest demonstration since the Snook arrived Sunday for a recreation visit by its 97-man crew. The submarine sails Friday.

Deaths

William N. Blanchard

WASHINGTON (AP)— Gen. William N. Blanchard, 50, Air Force vice chief of staff, died Tuesday after he suffered a heart attack at a Pentagon meeting. He was the second-ranking officer in the Air Force. Blanchard flew bomber missions during World War II and supervised the operations order for the atomic bombing of Hiroshima.

Washington Reed Jr.

WARRENTON, Va. (AP)— Washington Reed Jr., 59, a prominent Virginia architect who specialized in colonial restoration, died Monday while mowing his lawn. He helped restore Williamsburg, Va.

Walter Reck

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)— Walter Reck, 71, former general manager of the Ohio State Journal and former chief of three Associated Press bureaus, died Tuesday at home. Reck headed AP bureaus in Columbus, Ohio; Des Moines, Iowa, and Lincoln, Neb.

Reserves Ike's Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Department of Housing and Urban Development has reserved $2,000,000 in housing loan funds for Eisenhower College, Seneca Falls, N.Y.

In announcing this today, Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., said the reservation is made pending a review of the school's request for funds.

The college plans to build four dormitories.

Note Exile . . .

WASHINGTON (AP)— State Department officials said Tuesday night they had received no reports either from government agencies here or in Florida with direct information on the revolutionary takeoff point.

Officials stressed that the United States long has sought to discourage such raids and that a number of such expeditions have been halted in waters off Florida.

Local Death Record

Lawrence R. Marino

Funeral of Lawrence R. Marino of 21 Broadway who died Sunday in this city was held Wednesday 9:30 a. m. from the James M. Murphy Funeral Home, 176 Broadway, thence to St. Mary's Church where at 10 a. m. a high Mass of requiem was offered by the Rev. Edward J. Farrelly. Responses to the Mass were sung by Angelo Corrado accompanied by Theodor Riccobono, organist. During the bereavement scores of friends called at the funeral home and many floral and spiritual bouquets were received. In sad and loving memory of my husband, George J. Deyo, who passed away one year ago today, June 1, 1965: I do not forget him, I love him too dearly.

For his memory to fade from my life like a dream; My lips need not speak when my heart mourns sincerely. For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

God bless you George, Your Wife what is the definition of a private brand?

To some people, it is a retailer's own brand created with selling price first in importance and quality second.

To us at A&P, it's the opposite.

Quality comes first.

Value...the best for the least is the rule for our private brands.

If this wasn't true, how foolish we'd be to invest, as we have, literally millions of dollars in processing plants and testing laboratories.

If all we wanted were products we could sell cheaply without quality control, anybody could produce them for us.

The idea of quality private brands isn't new at A&P.

As a matter of fact, it's one of our oldest policies—and by golly, we're proud of it.

Are A&P Private Brands a good reason for shopping A&P?

They're one of many.

Son of Local Couple Enjoys Success With New Process

Meteoritic business careers by men still in their thirties are rarities on the American scene, but Mr. and Mrs. Philip Coletti, of West Shokan, can point with justifiable pride to the fantastic success of their son, Richard J. Coletti.

The elder Coletti, whose local ties include lengthy association as an employee of the Woodstock Country Club and the fact that he is the father-in-law of Allen Dear, Elwyn, owner of Woodstock's largest restaurant, this week detailed the flurry his son has created in color processing. Striking examples of his color print work are displayed on counters and in store windows all over the country and there is hardly a theater marquee anywhere that has not used his exclusive process. According to a recent survey, the chances of finding a "Coletti" used in advertisements for perfume, toothpaste, cosmetics, watches, drugs, steel, strawberries or to build up interest in an Elizabeth Taylor or Sophia Loren movie are ten to one.

Everyone in business today wants a Cole Color. Print, an exclusive process created by Richard Coletti, a man so distinguished even his own family avoids his nickname; still refers to him as Richard.

Dreamed in Color
The new tycoon of photographic procedure used to dream in color from the time he was a teenage apprentice with a printing firm in New York City. Even then, he expended every moment he could afford on bringing pictorial color within commercially marketable reach. He took all the science from photography and printing and applied it to color lithography and, within three years, he and several associates came up with the formula which has made him a wealthy man.

The breathtakingly beautiful work he does today is produced in two plants, a subsidiary firm, Daret Color Corporation, which he established 18 months ago in Danbury, Conn., and Coletti Color Prints, Inc., in Baldwin, L. I. Both house an impressive and costly array of photographic equipment, employ large staffs which work ceaselessly around the clock to fill government and advertising agency orders for "color originals" for distribution here and abroad. Planning reproductions and projecting color positive for papers which print in "Run-of-Paper" (ROP) full color has contributed much to Coletti's phenomenal success. So sought after is his work that he faces considerable expansion at his Baldwin laboratory.

Why has Coletti's color process caught on when others have failed? Probably because this modern Horatio Alger's colors are so incredibly alive. Then, too, the procedure is simple, swift and economical, a far cry from the tedious lat and rubber aprons of his apprentice days. Samples of his work are of such high quality that a viewer is startled and impressed at the same time. Fruits look so luscious one can almost feel the dew and taste the natural sweetness. Wine seems to sparkle in front of the eyes and its aroma can almost be sniffed. Glamorous movie stars are encased in a veritable froth of color.

Democrats Slate Spa Forum; Local Delegates Attend

Four Ulster County women will be among those attending the Democratic State Committee forum Saturday, June 11 in the Casino, Saratoga Springs.

Attending from the county will be Mrs. Everette Coty of Napanoch, Mrs. Chester Miller of Woodstock, Mrs. Freda Martens of Ruby and Mrs. John J. Hogan of Kingston. The program is open to both men and women and all interested citizens may attend.

The Schenectady County Women's Club will host a brunch at the Gideon Putnam 11:15 a. m. Those interested in attending may contact Mrs. Coty or Mrs. Miller.

The Democratic State Committee will provide guests with information on many issues. A panel of news writers will interview prospective candidates after their speeches. Many prominent party members will attend all functions on forum day.

the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and U. S. Information Agency wants to publicize events of national or global interest, they forwarded a single color original to Coletti Associates. The firm then makes a single master set of fully color-corrected separations to newspaper specifications. Hundreds of sets of color plates can then be made from these for simultaneous worldwide distribution. One job well remembered by the firm featured seven astronauts in color reproductions developed by Cole Color Release Prints—the first being of John H. Glenn after his historic orbital flight—and ordered by NASA. All a newspaper has to do to reproduce such work is make a simple line engraving plate and the release is ready to roll on the presses.

As president of the Long Island and Connecticut firms, Coletti figures prominently in almost every noteworthy event that takes place around the globe. He and his technical staff are the first to know when a movie is being released, a new product introduced and the trend of seasonal promotions.

The automatic film processing equipment at the Danbury plant alone represents a small fortune; can develop, fix, wash and dry films in four minutes flat. The air conditioned, humidity controlled and dustfiltered building keeps films pristine. Electric neutralizers are turned on to dissipate static electricity in the air whenever films are being handled because of their ultra sensitivity.

A Patient Perfectionist

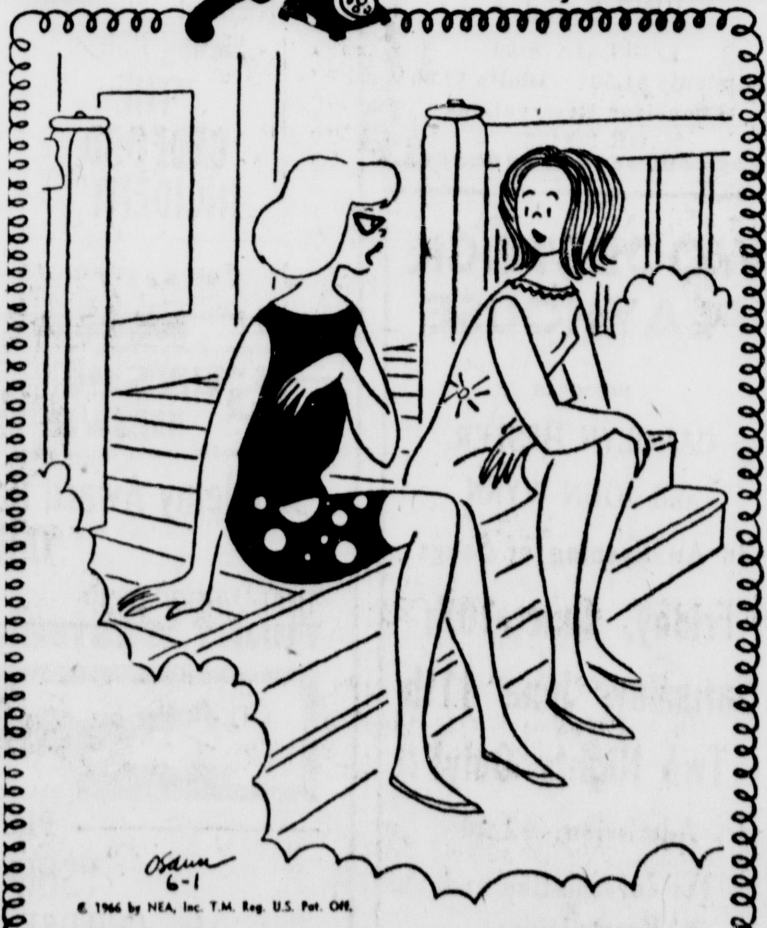

The man is a perfectionist; spares no expense to achieve the high scientific standards that make his products superior. With infinite patience, he waited months until engineers and plumbers had achieved the near impossible feat of having water run from the tap at an unwavering temperature of 70 degrees. The company's fine lithographic press can run off 28,000 prints an hour, making them far cheaper to advertisers than they were in the past. Among major clients today are Metro Goldwyn Mayer, J. C. Penny and W. T. Grant.

The Coletti family is proud of their scion son, who lived on English muffins during the lean years when every cent he had was tied up in elaborate equipment for testing. Today he smokes expensive cigars, has bankers beating a path to his door, spends his spare time in the theatre and good restaurants (including the one owned by his brother-in-law in Woodstock), is a good amateur chef in the Italian food department and drives an $8,000 automobile.

And just as his family is proud of him, he is proud of them in turn. In a recent interview in a metropolitan newspaper, he called them "a good family" and said they often helped him work on his new home in Ridgefield—aiding with the decorating and furnishing.

He has become the leading expert in color today and has had the rare privilege, at 40, of seeing many of his engineering innovations standardized in photographic equipment. In a world that is often black and white, the Philip Coletti's son has blazed new trails in color, and achieved fame in the process.

TIZZY by Kate Osann

"A house down the street has been rented for the summer. Can you imagine anybody coming HERE for a vacation?"

Critics Acclaim Book by Phelps

Critics have pulled out all the adjectives at their command in lauding a new book by an author Woodstock has long claimed as its own. In review after review in major magazines and newspapers across the country, statements crop up like "this marvelous book," "this remarkable volume" and "a great book of a kind never before produced."

What they're all praising so unqualifiedly is "Earthly Paradise"—Coletti's autobiography, edited by Robert Phelps.

Phelps has finally come into his own as a writer with this book which better than any biography could do, reveals the great French authoress in her own words. "By a miracle of tactful editing," says the New York Times, Robert Phelps has put together, from her books and letters, a record of her life; not just its events, but rather the interaction between her experience and the ceaseless flow of talent."

Phelps, who lived on Hasbrouck Lane here, while he was writing his first novel, used Woodstock as the background of that book. Published under the title of Heroes and Orators, the book was set to a great extent in the old S.S. Seahorse on Rock City Road and impressed mostly for its descriptions and characterizations of many of the habits of that establishment approximately a decade ago.

Called Vivid Portrait

Heroes and Orators, however, drew none of the critical acclaim which his new, vivid portrait of Coletti by Colette has done. The Times felt that through his "tender, infinitely careful knitting together of this book, which is more than a compilation, one catches a glimpse of the full extent of her achievement."

Life Magazine refers to Phelps as "the youngish new American authority on a special literary genius" and said the tome is the reader's great Colette book of a kind that France has never produced. Life praised Phelps' debut in the field as brilliant; said he had shown editorial intelligence that was rare, and was thoroughly impressed with his scholarly editing.

The former Woodstocker has, for several years, been a book reviewer himself for metropolitan papers and magazines. He has also written articles for Harper's Bazaar, among others. But with Earthly Paradise, he has, says Time Magazine, "skillfully constructed a sort of accidental autobiography that reveals Colette as the richest character in her oeuvre—indeed, as one of the most extraordinary women of the century."

Con-Ed Seeks FPC Approval on Below Land Plant

NEW YORK (AP)—Consolidated Edison has asked the Federal Power Commission (FPC) for a license to build its controversial Cornwall hydroelectric plant completely underground.

Con Ed chairman Charles E. Eble said Tuesday that under the amended application submitted to the FPC, the only visible evidence of the plant would be a visitors' information center and the top edges of a discharge panel channel in the water.

The change to a completely underground plant was aimed at improving the chances of the utility to win federal approval for the project when a second round of hearings begin in New York City in October.

The United States Court of Appeals last Dec. 30 reversed FPC approval for an above ground plant, declaring that the commission "must include as a basic concern the preservation of natural beauty."

Numerous conservation and community organizations have opposed the proposed $2-million plant, charging that it would destroy scenic beauty and recreational facilities along the Hudson River.

A WEEKEND HIGHLIGHT—No Memorial Day weekend here would be complete without the Woodstock Democratic Club's annual rummage sale and fair. Over the years, the event has grown bigger and bigger; earned a reputation for offering fantastic bargains on really fine articles. Saturday, carried home enough items to add many hundreds of dollars to the club's treasury. Fish Proposals Outline Solution To Combat Crime

Proposals to solve methods of curbing crime were outlined in a statement today by Hamilton Fish Jr. of Millbrook, who is seeking the Republican nomination for the 28th Congressional District seat.

The statement follows:

"Year after year we read about rising crime rates and the new social welfare experiments designed to change them. We keep discovering new causes of crime: fatherless families, slum conditions, loss of respect for law and for police. We haven't been doing well with solutions. However, there is one great resource in the war against crime which we have consistently neglected, our police forces.

Have Starved Them

"We have starved them for funds. We have denigrated them. The courts have taken many old weapons away from them and yet we have done little to make it possible for the average police force to take full advantage of the new advances in political science. I propose a new concept of the professional policeman as the central idea around which to improve our police forces as we have improved our schools, hospitals and other vital institutions. I would begin by proposing that federal aid to education be expanded to make a broad variety of specialized training available to law-enforcing officers.

"The modern police force is, in fact, engaged in social work, psychology, scientific detection, public relations and the practice of law. We force the practical choice of having our department hire high priced specialists in all these fields, or developing a modern professional policeman who's discipline spans these fields and commands the respect of all as a genuine profession in itself.

"Police education programs developed at the Universities of Michigan and California have shown that the professional policeman solution is workable and preferable. The highly trained beat policemen in Berkeley, California, serve as investigative officers and detectives for all matters arising in their areas. This provides "in depth protection" for the beat because the multi-skilled officer knows the area as the family doctor knows the patient.

Charges Flare After Klein Is Endorsed by Two

NEW YORK (AP)—Endorsement by both the Republican and Democratic parties of State Supreme Court Justice Arthur G. Klein for Manhattan surrogate has touched off new political charges.

Alex Rose, the top strategist of the Liberal party, said Tuesday he has broken off political relations with Deputy Mayor Robert Price. He accused Price of being a party to a Democratic-Republican "deal" backing Klein. Price denied the charge.

Meantime, the Liberal party lined up with Reform Democrats Tuesday night and threw their weight behind Klein's opponent in the June 28 primary, Justice Samuel J. Silverman, who also has the backing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

Civil Court Judge George S. Starke, the original Liberal party candidate withdrew from the race.

In a prepared statement, Rose charged that Price was backing social workers and other professional do.

"Prison guards, like police officers, are in more constant contact with social problems than are sociologists and psychologists. They are already a force for prevention of crime and for rehabilitation of criminals. They can be a far greater force given the proper training and opportunity for professional advancement.

"We presently have many outstanding people in police and prison work but we are not giving them the opportunities and status they deserve.

"Other measures should also be taken, funds for self studies and re-organization of police departments should be provided by the Department of Urban Affairs. At least one national graduate school of police science and administration should be developed to serve as a center for research and advanced training.

"Not the least advantage of a radical upgrading of the police profession would be the improvement of communications between police, lawyers, psychologists and others. The professional policeman would not only understand the view point of other professionals, he would command the respect needed to make them understand his."

"a surrogate deal which, if successful, would entrench the old-line Tammany leaders for many years to come and would make the struggle for good government more difficult in the future."

Price, who directed the election campaign of Republican Mayor John V. Lindsay, replied:

"... if he (Rose) thinks he has any evidence about a deal between the two political parties, he certainly ought to come forward and bring it to the attention of the public."

Some observers viewed the Rose-Price split as a threat to Mayor Lindsay's support among Liberals and a solid break among politicians who waged last fall's campaign that broke the 20-year hold democratic hold on City Hall.

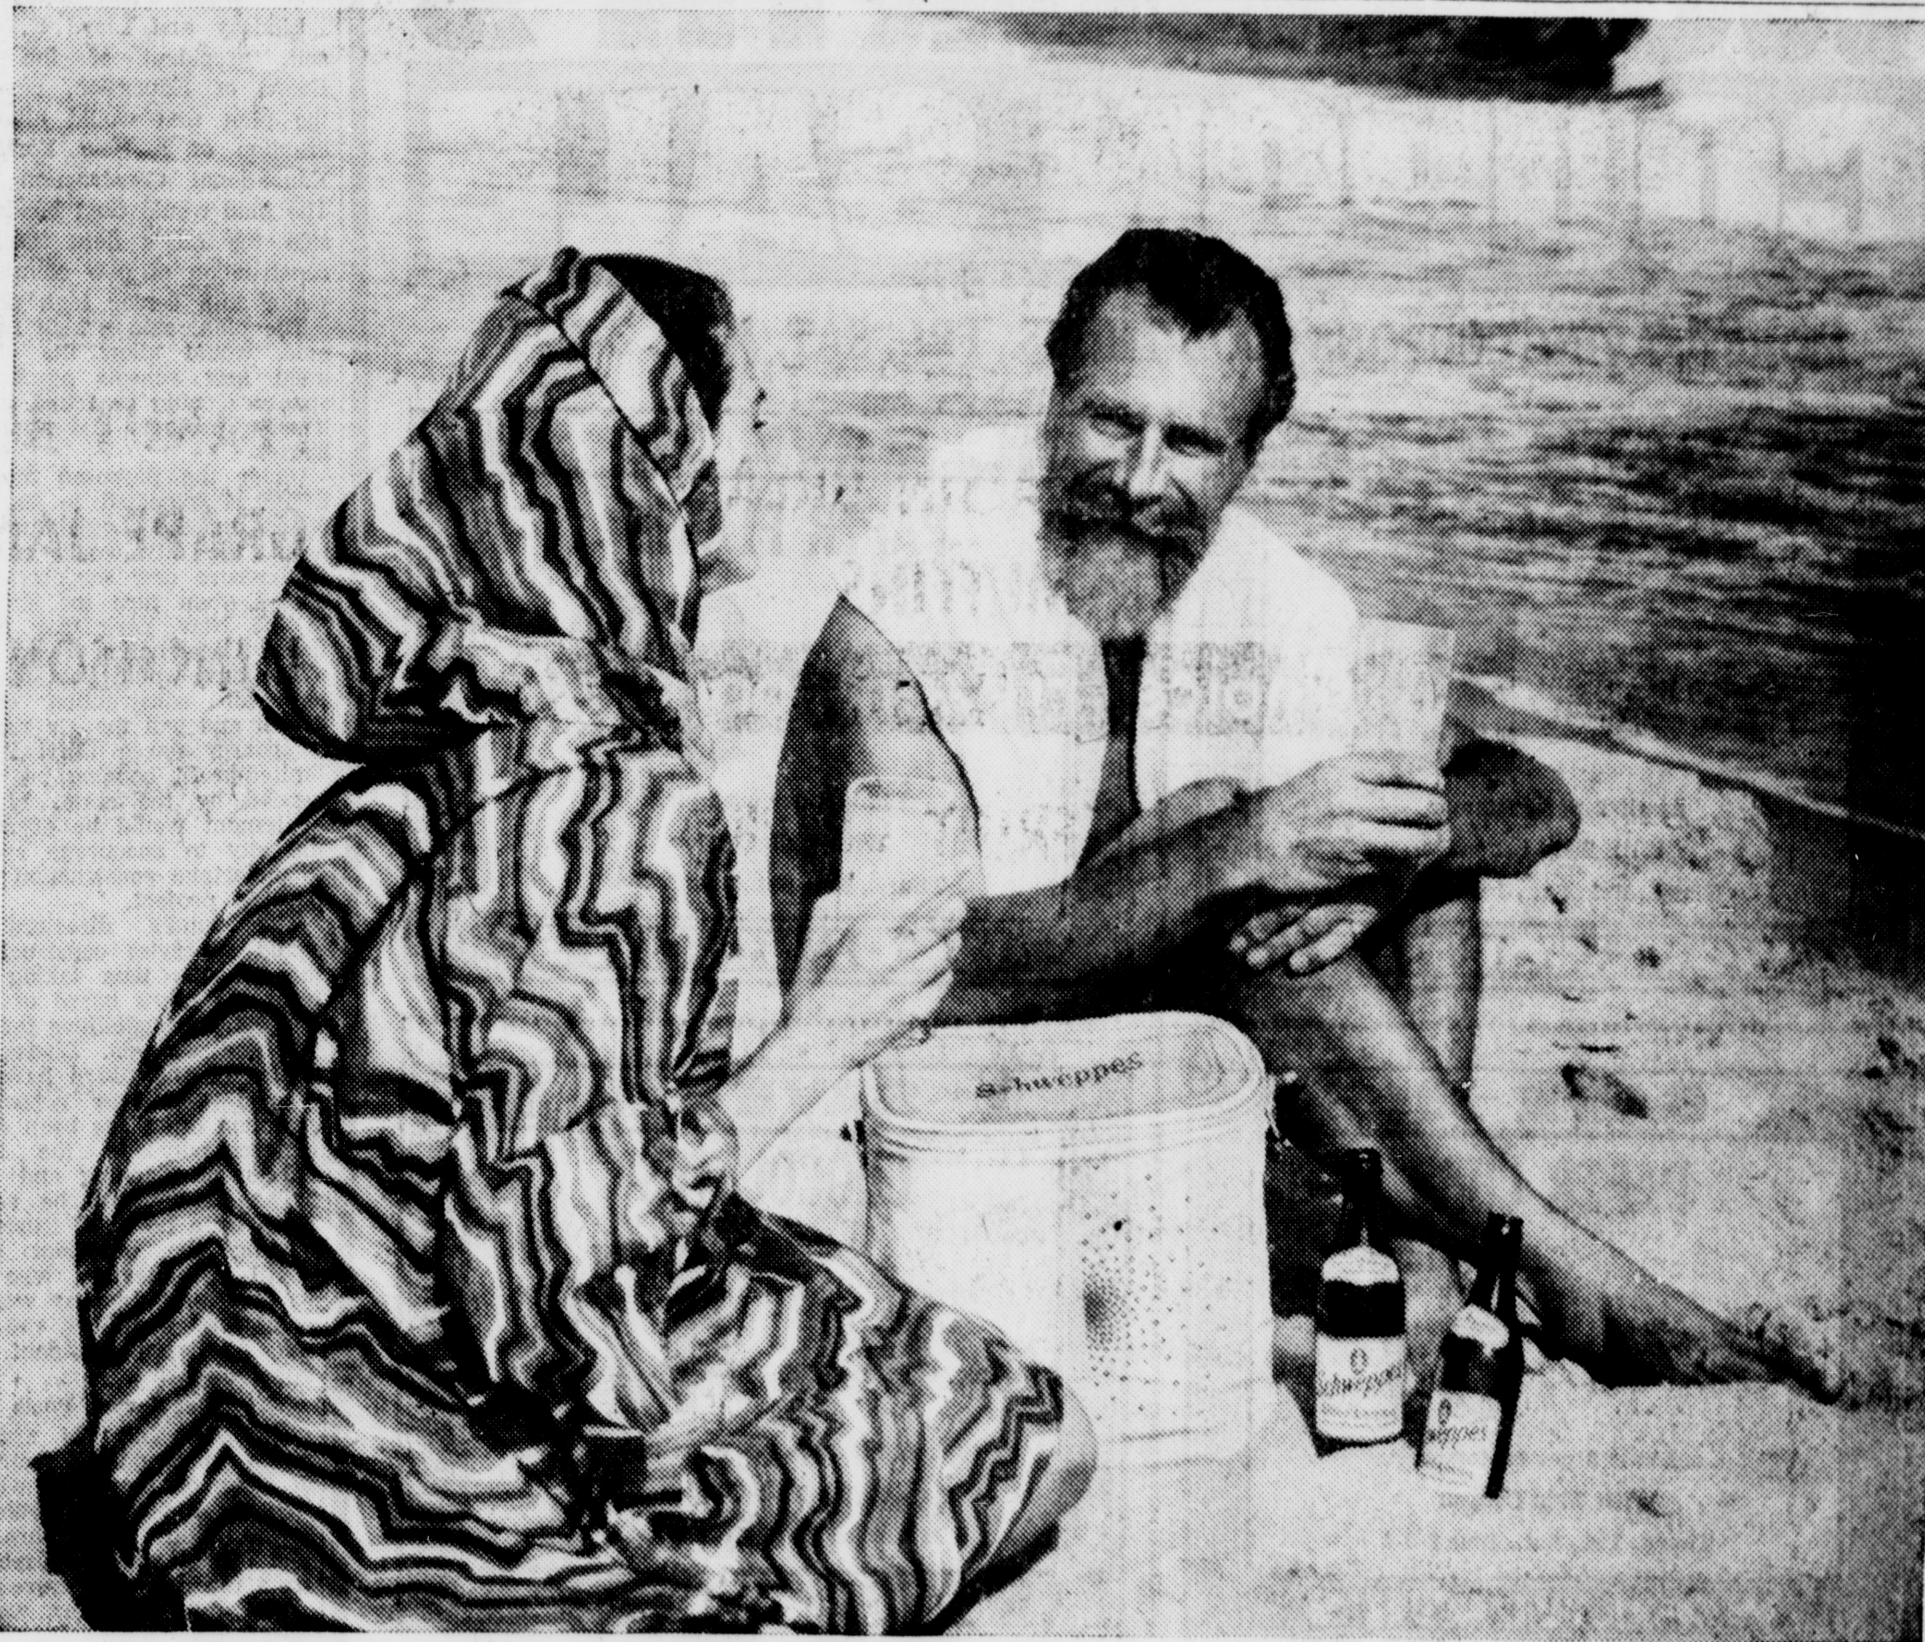

In Albany, Kennedy won both support and criticism Tuesday for his endorsement of Silverman to the $37,000-a-year post, which has huge patronage at its disposal.

Republican Assemblyman Paul Curran of Manhattan charged the senator with "crass political maneuvering" in an attempt to select the surrogate by entering into a "deal" with Liberals and Reform Democrats.

Assemblyman Albert Blumenthal, a Manhattan Democrat, defended Kennedy and said the "deal" had been made by Tammany leaders and Republicans in their endorsement of Klein.

Across this ocean, Schweppes invented Bitter Lemon.

"We established a beachhead for Schweppes Bitter Lemon," says Commander Whitehead, "and then it Schweet the whole country."

THREE years ago we invaded New York with Schweppes Bitter Lemon," recalls Commander Whitehead, President of Schweppes (U.S.A.) Ltd. "The gallant Broadway Brigade fought back bravely. The Madison Avenue Irregulars put up a stiff defense. But resistance began to crumble as soon as the first Schweppes Bitter Lemon was poured into a glass, over ice. After all, this was the first adult soft drink in the world.

"Then we launched a spirited attack with gin and Schweppes Bitter Lemon, supported by vodka and Schweppes Bitter Lemon. The battle was won! Remaining pockets of resistance surrendered wholeheartedly to rum and Schweppes Bitter Lemon.

"Soon we had Schweet all America." P.S. from the Commander-in-Chief.

Outlook Strong For Increase in Transit for N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—An increase in New York City's 15-cent transit fare appeared a strong possibility today as Republicans refused to enact a bill that could extract the Transit Authority from a financial bind.

The measure, pending before the Legislature since January, would permit Mayor John V. Lindsay to transfer $69 million from the city treasury to the authority.

Brydges Still Opposed

The money is part of $100 million in special aid made available to the city by Gov. Rockefeller, who said he did so to help the new Republican mayor maintain the 15-cent fare.

Senate Majority Leader Earl

W. Brydges, however, reasserted Tuesday his opposition to any special legislation that would help the city keep the fare at its present level.

Authority Chairman Joseph O'Grady said Sunday that the agency would be forced to raise subway and bus fares if it does not receive additional financial help by July 1.

Brydges is adamant that New York City should increase its public transportation fares to equal the 25 cent bus fare that prevails throughout the rest of the state.

Although the city has custody of the $69 million, special legislation is needed to transfer the funds to the Transit Authority.

Brydges was said to be undecided whether to bring the bill before the Senate for what he regards as certain defeat or to kill it by holding it in committee. In either case, a spokesman said, Brydges planned to prevent passage of the measure.

See $140 Million Yield

A 10-cent increase in the fare, according to some estimates, would yield up to $140 million in revenue. Brydges has suggested leaving a "revenue gap" in the city's proposed tax package that would force New York to raise the transit fare.

Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia, a Democrat, favors passage of the bill that would transfer the $69 million.

Republican legislative sources say, however, that it is doubtful that Travia could push the bill through the Assembly, because of opposition by Upstate and suburban legislators.

Meanwhile, in New York, officials of the Lindsay administration were gloomy over prospects that a transit fare increase could be averted.

These officials said a 5- or 10-cent boost in the fare was imminent. Some of their pessimism was based on the deadline in the state Legislature over Lindsay's tax proposals.

"In any realistic appraisal," the officials said, "we cannot hope to get the full $520-million Lindsay tax package through the Legislature—or anything near that amount."

Wally Must Pay

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Comedian Wally Cox has been ordered to pay $500 temporary alimony and child support to his estranged wife, Milagros.

Cox is suing for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty. Mrs. Cox, 28, had sought $1,350 monthly alimony pending trial of the contested action.

She and the 41-year-old actor were married three years ago in Las Vegas and have an adopted daughter.

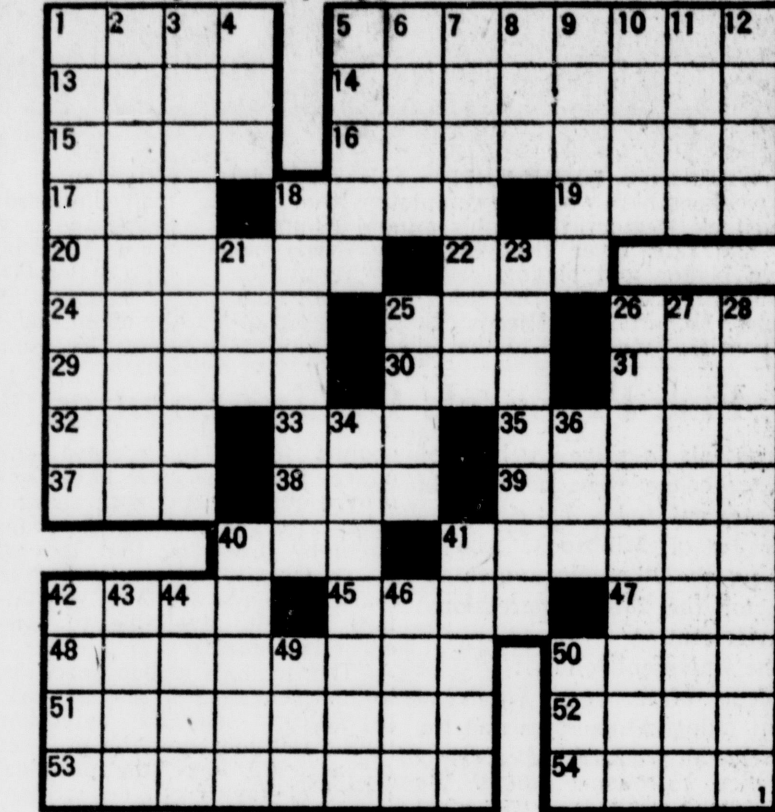

Jimmy 'Doing Fine'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actor James Stewart, 58, was in St. John's Hospital, and said to be "doing fine" today, following knee surgery. A hospital spokesman said Stewart, who was admitted May 23, should be released about the end of the week.

Lindsay to Ask Bold, New Plan On N.Y. Schools

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—New York Mayor John V. Lindsay will ask the Legislature to approve a bold, new scheme designed to build public schools with the help of profits from the sale of air rights for apartment houses.

Would Float Bonds

Lindsay and Lloyd K. Garrison, president of the city's Board of Education, developed the plan that would allow the creation of a New York City Educational Construction Fund. The fund would float bonds, outside the city's debt limit, for construction of new elementary, junior and senior high schools.

The plan, said a high Lindsay aide, would allow the city to build new schools as fast as sponsors could be found for the housing projects and apartment houses.

Under the proposed measure, which is expected to be introduced in the Legislature this week, the city would condemn land where new schools are required, then turn the site over to the New York City Educational Construction Fund.

The fund would float bonds to pay for construction of the school and sell the air rights to a sponsor for a Mitchell-Lama limited-profit housing project financed by the state. Full tax abatement would be offered by the city to encourage sponsors to undertake construction of the housing project.

The fund's directors also would supervise construction of the schools, thus taking away from the city's board of education its responsibilities for building new schools. Lindsay and critics of the board have complained that new school construction often has been delayed unnecessarily in the board's bureau of planning and design.

The fund would be administered by a board of trustees, including the president of the board of education, who would be chairman. Lindsay would appoint four members and Garrison, as board president, would appoint four.

Unsalaries Posts

Garrison and his appointees would serve during their terms of office on the board while the mayor's appointees would serve terms ending two, three, four and five years, respectively, from the date they were named.

The fund directors would be unpaid. They would be required to coordinate their plans with the board, to make sure the planned schools are consistent with the immediate needs of a community.

They also would be empowered to use the architects, engineers and employees of other city agencies to help plan new school buildings.

Lindsay and Garrison proposed the legislation to help the city meet the increasing demand for new schools which currently are constructed with money borrowed within the city's debt limit. The mayor says the city's borrowing power has nearly reached its limit.

The proposed legislation would be effective July 1.

To Consider Scooters

A proposal to assign scooters for city patrolmen, a plan which reportedly is proving successful in other cities, is under consideration here according to Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan. The mayor said a patrolman on a police scooter could do twice as much work and would be in constant communication with police headquarters by radio.

Johnson Briefs Lions Clubs on School Lunches

An informative and interesting talk on food service and the School Lunch Program was given by John Johnson at the Kingston Lions Club weekly meeting. Johnson, a member of the Lions Club, is director of the School Lunch Program for the Kingston Consolidated School System.

The speaker in discussing food service pointed out the tremendous growth in the restaurant industry in size, number, equipment and automation. "The importance or scope of the industry can be realized by looking at the number of restaurants. In New York City there are 21,000 eating establishments and 33,000 in New York State," he said. Thus Johnson noted the career opportunity in Food Service is excellent as people are eating out more often, will have more leisure time—vacations, and are becoming more mobile.

The School Lunch Program was started in 1946 with the purpose of safeguarding the eating habits of the American youth. Nutrition, the speaker noted, is important and is a subject that the public needs to be kept informed. This is pointed out by figures which show that six out of 10 girls and four out of 10 boys are receiving less than the proper nutritional value they need. On a college level one survey resulted or found that 70 per cent of their nutritional requirements. Thus the story of proper food and nutrition must be told, especially to the youth. This on one advantage of the School Lunch Program. In speaking about the school lunches, Johnson spoke with pride about the program in the Kingston School system. A centralized food center has been developed where all the food is prepared in one central area. This has resulted in reducing costs, a more efficient staff and providing for closer supervision of food. In the Kingston School Lunch program a staff of 80 is employed to prepare 3,100 meals a day for the 14 schools.

In concluding his talk the speaker again pointed out the importance of proper nutrition and food and the role the School Lunch Program provides in this respect.

South Needs Club Break

Oswald asks, "What is the first thing you do in timing your play of a no-trump contract?"

Jim: "I sort of reverse the word 'ARCH' and ask myself, 'How can I make this hand?' I study the opening lead to see if my opponents have led against my weakest suit. They usually seem to do that nasty thing.

Then I check to see if I can collect enough tricks to make my contract before they set up their suit and cash enough tricks to beat me."

Oswald: "Today's hand illustrates this. South has the four top hearts but unfortunately for his peace of mind and general well-being these four cards can only take two tricks. He misses two aces and if his opponents set up their suit they will make at least three heart tricks and set him. It is up to South to find a way to get nine tricks without giving up the lead more than once."

Jim: "A quick check would show me that I had three suits to work on. I could knock out the ace of spades and wind up with three spades, two hearts and two diamonds but that would be only seven tricks. I could go after diamonds and set up my diamonds right away assuming that suit broke but that would also leave me only seven tricks before the roof fell in."

Oswald: "That leaves the club suit. You can attack that by winning the first heart with your queen and leading the nine of clubs from your hand. You plan to let it ride if West plays low. If East produces the queen you will have to reconcile yourself to going down at least two tricks but if it turns out that West holds the queen of clubs you have a chance to establish five club tricks for yourself. Five clubs plus two hearts plus two diamonds give you the nine tricks you need."

Trained Police Dogs

Editor, The Freeman:

The recent editorial concerning the brutality of using Bloodhounds in the Sheriff's office was quite disturbing, as it may serve to give the public mistaken ideas. Bloodhounds are among the gentlest of dog breeds. They merely trail their victims, not molest them. If they were brutal, do you think they could be used to find lost persons, as well as criminals. As far as the cost of their keep, two Bloodhounds could be kept for a year, on what it would cost for a deputy for one month. They should indeed be well worth their cost.

There are many false notions about dogs used for police work.

These dogs are not of any one breed, although some breeds are more popular than others. Even a police dog will not be brutal when he traps his man. Their job is strictly to hold the criminal until the police arrive. These dogs are trained not to attack the victim. They have to be. Just suppose they find later the party involved was not guilty. These dogs, when off duty, live normal lives with their handlers' family and children. There is nothing nasty or brutal about them. In a television news broadcast about a year ago, the snarling dogs shown were privately trained animals, not working police dogs.

The sentry or attack dogs used in the Armed Forces are quite another matter. They are trained for a specific use, and have no business being used by anyone who is not highly trained in this field. It has been proven in London, that well-trained police dogs are the finest assistant an officer can have, and their use has greatly reduced the crime rate in specific areas. It is a shame that more of these intelligent animals are not in use.

Yours truly,

(MRS.) DEWITT DAY

Quite a Birdhouse

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A plush, new 1,000-student dormitory under construction at the University of Georgia won't be ready until this fall, but the first residents should arrive any time now.

Brick masons left a gap about midway up one wall of the dormitory because a sparrow's nest, with two eggs, was built in before they got there.

A worker said the masons will fill in the gap when the birds are hatched.

Ignore Music, Read Labels:

Specialist Offers Tips To Cut Down Food Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Midweek prices range 7 to 10 per cent higher on many items.

- Shop the specials. You can save 6 per cent on a weekly food bill of $30.
- Plan your menus with an eye on the advertisements. Make a list. Follow it once you get in the store.
- Avoid impulse buying.
- Whenever possible, buy in quantity on sale. Buy cleanser this week, 10 cans of peas next week.
- Shop alone when possible. Leave the children at home.
- Test products. Buy one package each of four kinds of beans and compare them. Often, she says, store brands are just as good and cheaper.
- Look for the lowest prices. You can knock $2 off an average $30 food bill by picking lower priced brands. Notice fluctuations.
- Substitute foods: chuck for rib roast, dry milk for fresh, margarine for butter, poultry and fish for red meat, hamburger for steak, casseroles for meat dishes.
- You pay high for convenience foods. Think: can I add the mushrooms cheaper? Maybe you don't even want mushrooms.

Shopping Serious Job

"Grocery shopping," Esther Peterson, assistant secretary of labor, added in an interview today, "is a serious job to get done in the most efficient, economical way possible. Ignore the music. Read labels."

An Associated Press survey of 12 cities showed Tuesday that the cost of a typical week's shopping climbed nearly 7 per cent in the past year.

The AP housewife brigade concluded that the government price index fairly reflects a hard fact: it costs more to feed the family.

For housewives trying to save money, Mrs. Peterson, a mother of four and a specialist on shopping trends, has some ready advice:

Advice to Shoppers

1. Be a weekend shopper.

Mansfield Seeks Compromise Prior To CIA Showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield tries for a compromise today before a possible showdown on Senate supervision of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mansfield called Tuesday night for a meeting with the principals in the controversy — Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee, Chairman Richard B. Russell of the present CIA watchdog group and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn. Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat, said he will introduce in the Senate today McCarthy's resolution setting up a nine-man watchdog committee with three members each from the Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Appropriations committees. But the showdown vote may depend on backstage strategy, other business and Senate attendance. Fulbright postponed his move last week because he felt not enough senators were in town. The move is opposed by members of the present CIA panel headed by Russell, a Georgia Democrat, and composed of six other members of the Armed Services and Appropriations committees.

Relief Rolls Cut by Jail Threat

Hard Line Approach Works But Story Sets Off Probe

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—The Niagara County Welfare Department has placed 70 men in jobs, cutting by 20 percent one portion of the relief rolls, by threatening the men with jail.

The "hard line approach" has worked well, says the welfare executive director, Norman J. Schreiber. He has not had a job-refusal since one man was sentenced to a 30-day jail term.

"One conviction was enough to motivate the others. This case has been a morale builder to workers in the department," Schreiber said. "We're getting the cooperation of the public. They are sick and tired of paying for these people."

But the project was touched with controversy Monday after a newspaper report on it, when a civil rights leader reacted to one quote in the story by demanding an investigation.

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, asked federal and state investigations of Schreiber's alleged use of the word "nigger" in an interview with the New York Times.

"I never used the word," Schreiber said Monday night. "I see no need to apologize."

Wilkins sent telegrams to Gov. Rockefeller and U. S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner, demanding a "prompt and complete investigation" into the use of federal funds by the county.

He said use of the racial epithet "suggests strongly that Schreiber's racial attitude may be coloring his so-called tough policy in handling welfare applicants and recipients."

The newspaper, in the story published Monday, said Schreiber, during the interview with a Times reporter here last week, remarked that he had recently found waiting outside his office a "nigger with a sore hand" who wanted to apply for welfare.

"I said, 'Get out of here, get out,'" Schreiber was quoted as saying.

20 Per Cent Wiped Out

The jobs were made available to welfare recipients in cooperation with the State Employment Service. Schreiber said the 70 men who accepted work were in the Temporary Aid to Independent Children (TADC) category of welfare.

Since the drive began 20 percent of the TADC cases were "wiped right off the books" because the families were raised to sufficient income.

While reluctant to attribute the program's success to the recent conviction of a man who he said refused a landscaping job, Schreiber said it "pushed them a little."

The case is that of Mose Pickett, 32, of Niagara Falls, who is serving 30 days in the Niagara County jail at Lockport for alleged violation of Section 145 of the State Social Welfare Law. He was convicted May 10 in Niagara Falls City Court.

The section makes it a misdemeanor to "interfere in the proper administration of public assistance."

The conviction was upheld in Niagara County court, but a further appeal is planned by an assistant county public defender, Earl W. Brydges Jr., son of the State Senate majority leader.

Brydges contends the welfare law section is unconstitutionally vague and that the welfare department failed to refer the fact and evidence available to the appropriate district attorney.

A similar case, that of Clarence E. Jones Jr., 29, of Niagara Falls, has been adjourned in City Court until after June 6.

"I don't want to throw them in jail," Schreiber said, but "outright refusal to accept a

VIET NAM'S TOLL—American combat fatalities in Viet Nam now exceed the lives lost in three of the nation's past conflicts. The Vietnamese toll from the start of 1965, when the major American buildup and direct combat role got under way, through the first quarter of 1966—a period of 15 months—is greater than for the War of 1812, the Mexican and Spanish-American wars and not far short of the Revolution.

job leaves me no choice." He said there is no discrimination in the cases. "It's just that's the way they fall."

He said that during last week's interview "I tried to deal strictly in generalities, talking about white and Negroes both. I might have made reference to special cases, but never to specific races, colors, creeds or religions."

Questions, Answers on Federal Tax

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—I always have large deductions and, as a result, am overwithheld on my income tax. Under the new withholding system I'm going to be more overwithheld than ever. Isn't there some way I can reduce my withholding?

A—The new law on withholding provides for additional withholding allowances for those with substantial itemized deductions, but this provision will not go into effect until next year. Instructions on how to take advantage of this provision will be issued by Internal Revenue Service later this year. It should benefit you because it will reduce your withholding for 1967 and future years.

Q—If I plan to do some sightseeing after a business conference in Paris will this have any effect on the deductibility of my travel expenses over to Paris and back?

A—Yes it might. Depending on the circumstances of your trip, only part of your travel costs associated with the business conference may be deductible. You would have to allocate these travel expenses between business and non-business activity if the following conditions apply:

1. The total trip lasts more than one week.

2. Twenty-five percent or more of your time away is devoted to non-business activity.

3. You had substantial control over the arrangements for the trip and a personal vacation was a major consideration in the decision to make the trip.

When these conditions apply, only a portion of the travel costs to Paris and back may be deducted. If one week was spent on business and two weeks sightseeing then only one-third of the travel costs may be deducted.

Note that this business travel rule only applies to travel outside the U. S. If you went on a business trip to some U. S. city and then went sightseeing, the full amount of your business travel costs would be deductible. For detailed rules on traveling get a copy of Publication 463, by writing your District Director.

Q—I lost my last maid because she didn't want me deducting Social Security from her wages. Can I pay both the employer's and the employee's share so I can give my maid her full wages?

A—Yes, you may. Your responsibility as an employer is to pay the social security taxes due on Form 942 if you pay $50 or more in cash wages to a household employee in any calendar quarter. It is up to you whether you pay the maid's portion of the taxes or withhold it from her pay.

Q—I never got a new withholding exemption form from my employer and too much income tax is being taken out of my pay. What can I do?

A—Ask your employer for a copy of Form W-4 at this time, fill it in, and return it to him. If you are unable to obtain the form from your employer, or want additional information on the new withholding system, write your local Internal Revenue Service office and ask for Document 5642, a fact sheet which explains the new withholding system. This fact sheet also includes a Form W-4.

Q—When do I have to report tip income to my employer when the 10th of the month falls on a weekend or holiday?

A—Report your tips on the next succeeding day which is not either a holiday or a weekend.

Q—Is it true that a taxpayer can take a tax case to the Supreme Court?

A—Yes it is, although it is more likely that the case would be settled at a lower level.

There are three levels set up within the Internal Revenue Service at which an agreement to the results of an examination may be reached. The first is the audit by an examining office, the second is a conference with a member of the District Conference with a member of the District Conference Staff, and the third level is the Regional Appellate Division.

If you still do not agree to the proposed increase in your tax, you may choose one of two routes of appeal. You may appeal to the Tax Court of the United States, whose decision you may appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and ultimately to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Or, you may pay the tax and file a claim for a refund. The claim would be considered by the District Director, whose decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division. If you reach no agreement, you may appeal to the United States District Court or the United States Court of Claims. An appeal thereafter would go, as in the other route, to the Supreme Court. All but a few of the tax disputes are settled in a district conference or at the Appellate level.

CAP Entertains At Family Picnic

During the last regular meeting at the State Armory on Manor Avenue, cadets of the Kingston Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, entertained their families at the annual Parent's Night. The entire program was planned and carried out by the cadets.

The program opened with the presentation of the colors and the pledge of allegiance by all present. This was followed by the cadet pledge, and formation with inspection of the cadet squadron by Capt. Michael Kozenko, commandant of cadets.

This was also awards night and the following presentations and promotions were made: S/Sgt. Michael Kozenko was promoted to T/Sgt.; A/2c Henry Carpino was promoted to A/1c; A/2c Timothy Farrel was also promoted to A/1c and A/3c Ronald Liebel was advanced to A/2c. The Red Cross SAR Plaque was awarded to T/Sgt. Kozenko, A/1c Carpino, and A/1c Farrel. A/2c Liebel, Cadet Michael McKeon, and Recruits Robert Rohan, Dennis Wiltzie, and Kevin Liebel, Course completion ribbons were also awarded to T/Sgt. Kozenko, A/1c Carpino, A/1c Farrel, A/2c Liebel, and Cadet McKeon. A/1c Carpino was awarded his radio operator proficiency card and was appointed flight leader.

Two movies were shown, one on the search and rescue mission of the United States Coast Guard and the second on the vacation lands of New York State.

After refreshments, also planned by the Cadets, the colors were retired and another successful Family Night was brought to an end.

New Pollution Plan

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The Delaware River Basin Commission will unveil a plan for controlling pollution in the river at a conference July 27 in Philadelphia.

The plan was developed after several years study, the commission said.

Matter of Fact

Lemons, whose world production today averages about 1.5 million long tons a year, were unknown to the ancient Greeks and Romans. The lemon was probably first introduced into Spain and the North African countries about 1000 or 1200 A.D. The crusaders found them growing in Palestine and brought them back to Europe with them for distribution.

Stratton Objects To Speech That Never Was Given

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic Rep. Samuel S. Stratton objects to a speech by a fellow New York State congressman, Charles Goodell, who never got around to delivering it.

Stratton, of Amsterdam, protested Tuesday against Goodell's proposals for a plebiscite in South Viet Nam as well as advance release of the speech.

Goodell made public Monday the text of a speech he said was to be delivered on the House floor Tuesday.

Instead, Goodell, of Jamestown, was in his Upstate district today, and the speech was not delivered. Aides said the Republican representative's speech would be published in the Congressional Record.

The speech proposed a vote among the people of the war-torn Southeast Asian nation to determine whether they felt the National Liberation Front—the political arm of the Viet Cong—should assume power in the country.

Stratton took the floor as soon as the House convened, anticipating that the speech would be given later in the day.

He said the advance release to news media of speeches to be delivered was "one of the more appalling practices that has developed here in the House in recent months."

He said that, unless members comment on such speeches before they are delivered on the floor, "We will never have an effective chance to comment at all."

As to Goodell's proposals, Stratton said: "It ought to be obvious . . . that, in the middle of a war, you aren't helping any by proposing a vote on whether you ought to surrender."

Goodell had proposed the plebiscite as a test of claims by the North Vietnamese government. He said the United States should try to promote unity in Viet Nam through free elections.

Ten Ways Listed For Green Thumb

Since the dawn of language, people have been said to have, or not to have, a green thumb. One person is considered able to plant anything successfully while another fails.

"Don't believe it," says the American Association of Nurserymen. "Under identical conditions one plant will be about the same as another unless, by mere chance, there happens to be a defect within the seed or plant itself."

Ten rules to help everyone to have a green thumb are pointed out by nurserymen, as follows:

Grow only plants that are hardy for the climate and soil conditions of the area.

In spring frost areas do not plant outdoors too early.

In general, where practical, start with plants that have been grown under ideal conditions, rather than seeds.

Water thoroughly then allow soil to become somewhat dry before watering again. Do not let plants become too dry or too wet for long periods.

Pick up a handful of soil and compress it in your fist. If it compacts solidly, or does not compact at all, add organic material. If it compacts lightly, it probably is about right.

Do not plant too deeply. A general rule is to plant seeds at a depth equal to their width. Trees and shrubs from nurseries should be planted at the same depth they previously were planted as shown by the soil line on the trunk or stem.

Do not use too much fertilizer. Follow instructions on the containers.

Cultivate the soil about the plants. Keep it loose and friable. Observe the plants closely. If insects or diseases attack them, use an all-purpose spray obtainable at any garden store. Closely follow instructions on the container.

Give Nature a chance. She's pretty good at growing plants. Observe these rules and you're just as apt to have a green thumb as the next fellow, the nursery group states.

Pa. Solons Back

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The Pennsylvania General Assembly returned today after an extended holiday weekend to take on a heavy workload of fiscal matters.

The key action was expected in the House where 196 appropriations bills, totaling $975 million, were in position for a final vote. Majority Democrats hoped to send many of them to the Republican-controlled Senate this week.

Can't Trust Anyone

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A woman walked into a branch of North Carolina National Bank Tuesday, handed a teller two rolls of quarters, and asked for $20 in paper money.

The teller took the rolls and handed over $20, said the branch manager, David Eisele, and the woman left.

When the teller unwrapped the rolls, Eisele said, he found two rolls of aluminum foil and washers—with a quarter on each end of each roll.

Ex-Premier in Coma

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Former Premier John M. Chang was reported in a coma today with a liver ailment.

The 66-year-old retired politician, who also served as vice president under the late President Syngman Rhee, has long been suffering from liver inflammation. He entered a hospital last week for the second time in a year.

Chang's government was overthrown in May 1961 by the military coup which brought President Chung Hee Park to power.

Thursday: Cernan takes 2½-hour space walk, maneuvering part of the time on a 150-foot tether with a rocket-powered back pack. Astronauts practice a rendezvous without the use of radar and dock and unlock several times.

Friday: Practice rendezvous and docking technique that might have to be conducted to rescue two astronauts who have started down to moon and for some reason decide not to land. Experiments.

Saturday: Return to earth after orbital flight of 70 hours 40 minutes, landing in Atlantic 420 miles east of Cape Kennedy.

U.S. Draft Could Become Scandal, Nixon Asserts

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The present draft system is not working effectively and has a tendency of deferring the intellectuals and the financial elites, says former Vice-president Richard M. Nixon.

For this reason, Nixon said Tuesday night, he has a strong feeling that the draft system could become a national scandal.

Nixon's comments came during a fund-raising dinner held by Chautauque County Republicans. He was the principal speaker.

Nixon said he favored a lottery program for the draft with no deferments in the educational field.

"Those of draft age can continue on in college and the burden seems to fall on those who do not have the same encouragement," he added.

This burden, referring to the Viet Nam struggle, "should fall on all of us," he said.

In his speech, Nixon blamed the Johnson Administration for "lost world leadership, second-rate government, inadequate Viet Nam policies and lack of leadership in Washington."

He said the U.S. should use its air and sea power to "quarantine the Viet Cong."

Purposes Listed Of YAF in Talk By State Official

Ulster County members of Young Americans for Freedom met recently to hear an address by Donald G. Pemberton, State Y.A.F. Chairman and National Y.A.F. board member. Held at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, the meeting was conducted by Dennis Whittlers, Ulster County High School Chapter chairman.

Pemberton spoke on the main purposes of Y.A.F. chapters—to promote conservatism and to build leadership.

"Chapters should create programs to reach the public in their town and county," Pemberton said, "and conduct personal salesmanship. We are selling a product—conservatism; it's a great product," he continued.

"As you represent YAF and the conservative cause, always keep foremost in your minds that you are conservatives, you are proud of it, and you are strong in your beliefs."

The State Chairman also encouraged the members to help elect conservative candidates. Referring to the high school age groups, he said, "I don't think anyone is ever too young to help work for a candidate."

On building leadership, Pemberton said, "In the future, there is going to be a great need for young leaders, and YAF is being looked on as the organization which will supply this leadership."

"High school groups should prepare themselves for leadership by gaining a thorough knowledge of conservatism first," he continued. "Then accept responsible positions in local YAF chapters, as well as being active in school, church and other organizations in the community," Pemberton concluded.

Members of the local chapter discussed some of their immediate plans, which included their second annual fund raising project, with over 15 awards to be given.

Segal Has Very Strange Feeling in Neo-Nazi Film

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

BERLIN (AP)—When an actor named Segal makes a movie about neo-Nazism in Berlin, how does he feel?

"Very strange," says George Segal. "Very strange indeed."

The fast-rising young actor is the sole American in the international cast of "The Quiller Memorandum." The story depicts the rise of Nazi feeling in today's Germany. The film subject is reported to have stirred some concern among the Germans, ever conscious of their image to the world.

Since he is Jewish, Segal remarked, "I never expected to be in Berlin; I never expected to be in this country."

But the lure of a good script overcame his feelings, and he is here now playing a secret agent who investigates an outbreak of violence caused by latter-day Nazis.

"Of course this is a mythical movement, according to all the Germans you meet," the actor said dubiously. "They all claim that they had Jewish grandmothers; at least I have heard that several times. It is impossible to find a Nazi or ex-Nazi."

Speaking realistically, Segal commented: "It would be surprising if there weren't a resurgence of feeling for the Nazi days. Look at the immense amount of nostalgia for World War II in the United States. There must be the same kind of inclination in Germany."

DO YOU REMEMBER

By Sophie Miller

Recently a brick structure was taken down on Canal Street near the Rondout Creek and Ferry Street. One of the beams which came out of the building was some 22 feet long, and some 12 by 12 inches square. They say a new beam of this size cost about $40 or $45, but a used one runs around $15 each. I only saw one of that size there. They did have hand-hewn beams to hold up the front of the building, with trim over it. The big beam had large square nails in it, as now saved by collectors. There were large bluestone window sills. No doubt some of this material will be sold and used in other structures.

I was shown how the beams were trimmed with an adz by hand. It seems it is a cutting tool having a curved blade at right angles to the handle. Ships' carpenters and coopers used it on timber many years ago. The bricks interested me, and I was told, that there was a possibility that they may have come over from Europe on ships on which they were used as ballast, perhaps from England. I received a colorful, illustrated brochure from Lexington, Va., in which are small, careful drawings of their landmarks, buildings, homes, which look like some of our Kingston efforts.

Tax Lien Against Joan

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — The federal government filed today in Monterey County Superior Court a $36,083.97 tax lien against folk singer Joan Baez. Miss Baez annually refuses to pay 60 per cent of her tax bill because she says she does not wish to support the nation's war efforts.

Colonial buildings. One is on a steep hill which is called the Campbell house, which was recently left to the Rockbridge Historical Society which plan to preserve and restore the building and garden. Behind this building is the Castle, meeting place and museum of the Historical Society and houses hundreds of old papers, maps. They also have a Lexington Visitor Information Center which is located in the Chamber of Commerce headquarters, near the Stonewall Jackson Memorial Cemetery, where the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce is always glad to answer questions on accommodations and points of interest in Rockbridge County. No doubt he is a native or local man who knows the interesting landmarks and history in back of that section. They further describe how their county's public library and some private residences have been restored. Lexington's central business district is a few blocks away. Our DeWaal Tavern would have made such a convenient and interesting Ulster County and Kingston Visitor Information Center, I think. One item reads: Jackson Memorial Hall was built in 1914 with funds made available by the Federal government in restitution for the destruction of educational buildings 50 years before June 12, 1864. This is an impressive hall of high wooden beams and colorful state flags. During 1861-65 was the War of the Rebellion, or Civil War, and a museum near this building has many Civil War items, this VMI Museum and the Jackson Memorial Hall are open to the public daily. Richard E. Byrd and George S. Patton were students at the Virginia Military Institute.

The house and mill, at Walnut Grove Farm, where Cyrus Hall McCormick was born, a few miles off of Route 11 at Steeles Tavern, has been restored and open to the public. McCormick was the inventor of the reaper. A picture of the old-fashioned structures with large fireplace chimney is shown here

Birling, or log rolling, is a favorite sport of the North American lumberjack traceable to the early lumbering era in Maine. The idea is to maneuver your opponent off balance and into the water. Contests are usually held after the log drive reaches the sawmill. The world's first birling championship was held in 1898 at the Omaha, Neb., exposition.

Negro Wins Runoff Primary For Macon County Sheriff

By REX THOMAS
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., (AP) — The first Negro nominated for sheriff in Alabama since Reconstruction days held out a jubilant promise today of fair and efficient law enforcement.

Despite a split in the ranks of Negro voters, Lucius A. Amerson won the Democratic nomination in Macon County Tuesday in a runoff primary in which three other Negro candidates triumphed over white opponents.

Were Defeated
In the remaining 22 white vs. Negro contests which highlighted an otherwise uneventful statewide party election, the Negro candidates went down to defeat, including one of the state's best known civil rights attorneys, Fred D. Gray.

Significantly, none of the eight Negroes who sought seats in the legislature was successful. Thus until there is a vacancy or until a new legislature is chosen in 1970, the state's lawmaking assembly will be composed of 141 white members.

Amerson, 32, a former postal employee who gave up his job to campaign for sheriff, faces possible Republican opposition in the November general election. But there appears to be little likelihood that another candidate would succeed where the incumbent sheriff, Harvey Sadler, failed.

Negroes, who until five years ago had difficulty registering in Macon County, now have a 2-1 voting majority. A split developed within their ranks when a Negro city councilman, the Rev. K. L. Buford, supported Sadler but enough of them stuck together to give the chunky, neatly dressed Amerson the victory.

Decisive Margin
It also was the decisive margin which nominated funeral home owner L. A. Lockair for tax collector and Harold Webb, 67, a retired teacher, for a seat on the county governing body, the Board of Revenue.

The other successful candidate was the Rev. Peter Kirksey, 60, a civil rights leader in Greene County who ran for a place on the county school board.

The breakthrough in the sheriff's race held out to the Negro nominee the prospect of authority never before entrusted to one of his race by Alabama voters. The sheriff is the chief law enforcement officer of the county.

Macon County however already had four Negro officials, elected two years ago, and Tuskegee has two Negroes on its City Council.

In Greene County, it was the first time a Negro was able to penetrate the traditional barrier of white political supremacy.

Negro candidates for sheriff and for other county offices ran behind white opponents in Bullock, Hale and Perry counties even though Negroes there also have a voting majority.

All Did Not Vote
Victorious white officials generally attributed their success to the failure of newly registered Negro voters to turn out in full force or to join together in a bloc vote.

But some Negro spokesmen challenged the suggestion that Negroes may have supported white opponents. The defeated Negro candidate for sheriff in Hale County, the Rev. Henry McCaskill, said he plans to protest the election.

McCaskill charged that many Negroes were "frightened and full of fear," but there were no reports of irregularities from federal poll watchers who stood guard there and in five other counties.

Amerson, a native of Greene County and a former student at Tuskegee Institute, gave up his post office job in Montgomery three months ago to devote full time to his race for sheriff.

Rejoicing with friends and members of his family, he promised, if elected in November, to "try to institute an efficient law enforcement agency for all the citizens of our county."

Clean Defeat
Sadler, who was appointed sheriff by Gov. George C. Wallace 16 months ago when former Sheriff Preston Hornsby became probate judge, said he had no hard feelings, and wished Amerson luck. He said it was "a clean defeat."

Wallace, whose wife won the Democratic nomination for governor four weeks ago, apparently managed to exert some influence on Tuesday's voting.

Secretary of State Agnes Baggett won the nomination for state treasurer — with the governor's backing — even though she ran 47,000 votes behind State Auditor Betty Frink in the first primary.

Democrats also nominated Melba Till Allen for auditor and Richard (Dick) Beard for agriculture commissioner. In two of the three congressional races at stake, Robert F. Whaley and State Rep. Tom Beville were nominated. In the other, Warren L. Finch was leading his opponent, Richard McPherson. Republicans now hold those congressional seats.

Appoints Hogan

A. Reis Jr., commissioners, and Lillian Salapatis, secretary.

A native of Kingston, Hogan has served as a Democratic committeeman in the Seventh Ward, and is a member of the Kingston Democratic Club. His wife, Rosemarie, is a former member of the Civil Service Commission and for two years served as its president.

Hogan attended local schools and is a graduate of St. Mary's School and Kingston High School. He is a veteran of World War II and served three years in Europe with the 386th AAA Battalion of the Anti-Aircraft Artillery. He is a member of Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church.

In 1964, Hogan accepted the designation as coroner at Ulster County coroner at the Democratic County convention when the party was unable to obtain a physician. He later fled his declination as a candidate and said it was his feeling that a member of the medical profession should serve in the post of coroner.

Mrs. Hogan is vice-chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee and is employed as bookkeeper at the Washington Growers Market in Poughkeepsie. Hogan is a salesman employed by the West End Brewing Co. of Kingston.

They are the parents of a son, Jay, a student at Ulster County Community College.

Fish Charges Foe With Abuse of Press and Public

POUGHKEEPSIE: Hamilton Fish Jr., Dutchess County candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress accused his opponent in the June 28 Primary of abusing the courtesy shown by Republican Clubs, the public and the press in its efforts to accurately and fairly report the current Congressional Primary campaign.

Fish, who made the statement at Thursday night's Saugerties Republican Club debate, pointed out that "he believed that the Republican Clubs, the public and the press were being abused" as the highly slanted reports of these debates have been placed in the papers by Aldrich's campaign writers.

When asked by William Brinier, northern Ulster County Republican Club member, if Fish was accusing the press of being unfair, Fish said: "Of course not. I am accusing Mr. Aldrich of abusing the press's desire to fully and accurately report this campaign by submitting totally slanted reports of these debates."

Aldrich, who was sitting next to Fish when the charge was made failed to comment.

According to Fish reports of the Marlborough, West Hurley, Olive, Wawarsing and Beekman debates had been issued by Aldrich's press staff.

The reports which Fish called "deceptive and erroneous" have been carried in a number of area papers and on area radio stations.

Meanwhile, W. Wendell Heilman, Dutchess County campaign coordinator for Fish, advised Aldrich's campaign manager to "stop whispering and stop issuing false statements."

Heilman was referring to a reported statement made in a Dutchess County newspaper by John Larkin that Fish was avoiding debates.

Heilman's statement follows: "On the day after Hamilton Fish Jr. engaged in a debate with Mr. Aldrich, Mr. Aldrich's campaign manager seeks to claim that Ham Fish is avoiding debates. This is ridiculous.

"This, of course, is far from the truth. The candidates have engaged in about 20 joint appearances or debates including one in Cossackville on Tuesday night and one in Saugerties Thursday night."

"On June 2 they will both appear on radio station WHUC in Hudson. On June 8 they have a debate in Shawangunk, and we are awaiting a decision from Mr. Aldrich for a debate in Union Vale on June 9."

"I suggested Mr. Aldrich's campaign manager stop whispering and I also suggest that they stop issuing false statements."

"The failure to debate charge is an old political chestnut and the people are weary of it. Hamilton Fish Jr.'s schedule is filled with commitments and we have no intention of breaking those commitments to meet Mr. Aldrich's convenience."

"I am sure that the people will meet this and future false statements issued from the Aldrich headquarters with the same disdain and revulsion with which they have greeted past statements that were false. The Congressional race has many important issues. We suggest that Mr. Aldrich discuss them and avoid any future fallacies in his statements."

Hold Man Sought In '63 Murder

A man wanted for murder in New York City back in 1963 was picked up in Fallsburgh on May 29 and turned over to the New York authorities.

Chief Seymour Farber of the Fallsburgh Police Department reported that Richard Hill, also known as Marcus Allen, a salad chef employed in a Loch Sheldrake hotel, had been reported by an informant to be wanted in New York City for the knifing of one, Allan Langrey, on August 28, 1963. Information was given the police authorities that the wanted man was in the vicinity of Fallsburgh.

With New York City police, Chief Farber and members of his department went to the hotel at 12:30 a. m. on May 29. An employee at the hotel ran from the door when the officers arrived and informed the officers that he was not the wanted man but the one who had phoned the information.

At first Hill refused to identify himself as the man the police were searching for but after a photo had been found in his possession identifying him as Richard Hill, he admitted his identity and was placed under arrest. Hill, Chief Farber said, admitted to being a narcotic addict.

Casals Has Cold
SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Pablo Casals, 90, has a slight cold that will prevent his attendance at the first concert of the annual Casals Festival.

The event is to be held today at the University of Puerto Rico with Alexander Schneider conducting a substitute program.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — A scattered recovery movement widened in the stock market early this afternoon even as the list remained lower on averages. Trading was slow.

Traders were doing a little cautious bargain-hunting among issues which were sold down in Tuesday's sharp drop. There was no stimulating news to inspire the list as a whole, however, and analysts saw the market as continuing its process of trying to build a base for a possible summer rally.

Wider recoveries were made, as usual, by some of the high-flying issues in color television electronics, office equipments, airlines and office equipments.

Aerospace issues were lagged in coming back, apparently still dampened by Tuesday's unconfirmed "peace scare" concerning Viet Nam.

Motors recovered from small early losses and moved higher. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off with a minor loss of .78 at 883.29, having improved from its initial decline of 2.62.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.0 to 319.4 with industrials off 1.2, rails off 1.1 and utilities off .1. A loss of nearly 2 by Du Pont dragged at the averages.

Praise Record Of Area Scouts During Past Year

At the recent annual business meeting of the Rip Van Winkle Council Inc., Boy Scouts of America, at which Oliver Tweedy of Hurley was elected president along with a full slate of officers, Scout Executive Alex Macdonald of Hurley, reported on Council achievements during the past year and its objectives for 1966.

Other officers elected included Vice-Presidents Israel Slutsky of Hunter, Dr. Clifford Hoppens of Clintondale and J. Richard Shults of Kingston. Donald Crout of Kingston was elected Scout commissioner and Earle H. Foster will serve as treasurer.

Macdonald commended the efforts of the hundreds of volunteer Scout leaders in bringing the character building, citizenship training, and physical fitness programs of Scouting to more than 3,400 boys in Ulster and Greene Counties.

A highlight of the 1966 annual meeting was the showing of a new color filmstrip and recording entitled, "The United Way." The filmstrip, which was produced, recently, by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, points up the historical alliance of Scouting with Community Chest and encourages Scouters, parents, and friends of Scouting to work actively in, and contribute generously to the annual Community Chest Campaign.

Presiding at the 1966 annual meeting was Council President Gifford R. Beal of Highland. Beal was presented with a plaque in recognition of his two years of service as council president by National Council Representative Clifford A. Henze of Hurley.

A farmed certificate of appreciation was also presented by Henze to William E. Belser in recognition of his three years of service as council treasurer. Both of these Scouters will continue to serve as members of the Rip Van Winkle Council Executive Board.

The meeting closed with a social period and refreshments served by members of the Troop 12 Mothers Club.

Agree on Paris, Shanghai Flights

PARIS (AP) — France and Communist China today announced an agreement to establish air transport service between Paris and Shanghai.

The agreement was signed at the Foreign Ministry following negotiations which began here May 9.

Under the agreement, lines designated by the French and Red Chinese governments will fly the route.

The French carrier undoubtedly will be Air France, the government company. The Communist Chinese National Airline will most probably fly for Red China.

would also create a board of trustees for the estate, and would appropriate the $477,000 necessary to purchase the property from the heirs of the late Frederic Church. The assemblyman added, however, that an organization which was formed to try and preserve "Olana" has already collected over a quarter of a million dollars in private contributions, and that these funds would be turned over to the state to assist in the purchase of the property.

Assemblyman Wilson noted that recent television coverage of the "Olana" estate, and an extensive article on "Olana" in Life magazine, has stimulated local and national interest in the project to save the estate, and has prompted many people to write to Albany requesting that the legislature pass the "Olana" bill. Wilson said he has been deluged with correspondence on the matter, including many out-of-state letters and that he has assured everyone that he will give his full support to the legislation. The assemblyman said the bill is now before the Assembly Rules Committee, and that he, as a member of the committee will do everything possible to urge Assembly Speaker Travia to allow the bill to come before the assembly for a vote.

newspapers, said later that the proposal for a new union "didn't do today's negotiations any good."

Issues Statement

Meyer issued this formal statement last night in behalf of the new publishing corporation: "The World Journal Tribune has been dealing with the newspaper Guild of New York in attempting to arrive at a new agreement covering employees in all departments previously represented by the Guild at the predecessor newspapers.

"The World Journal Tribune intends to continue to deal with the Newspaper Guild of New York as the historic and legally certified representative of all employees under guild jurisdiction."

Earlier, Cole said that Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice president of the Newspaper Guild of New York, "blew his top to the publishers" indicating "that he felt that in some manner they were directly responsible for the rump group."

A key issue in the Guild strike was the union's demand that seniority be observed in selecting the staffs for the new newspapers. The publishers want to make some selections outside seniority.

Refused to Cross

Members of the nine craft unions in the newspaper industry have refused to cross Guild picket lines.

The proposal for a new union was announced in telegrams sent to news media in the city.

Signers included Walt Kelly, a Hall syndicate contributing cartoonist to the old Herald Tribune, one of the merged papers; and Jimmy Breslin and Dick Schaap, columnists for the same paper.

Murphy Tuesday night showed newsmen a petition he said was signed by 75 of the editorial employees of the New York Times. Murphy quoted the Times employees saying a move to splinter the Guild would be "harmful to all employees and the public as well."

Can Invoke Fine

He said the guild can fine or expel any member who goes ahead with plans for dual unionism. He said he doubted whether the dissidents have backing from 10 per cent of newspaper editorial employees.

The Guild had 1,800 members among employees of the merged newspapers. The Guild says about half this number will lose their jobs in the merger.

The Guild strike started April 24 — the day before the publication date scheduled by the new corporation. It plans to publish the Herald Tribune weekday mornings, the World Journal weekday afternoons and the World Journal Tribune on Sundays.

total state aid to schools in this fiscal year to $1,368,000,000.

Adds to State's Share

The main purpose of the bill is to increase the state's share in the primary operating expenses of local school districts. Under present law, the state shares in the first $600 spent per pupil each year. The new ceiling would be $660 annually.

In addition, extra money would be provided for districts that spend less than $600 a year and thus would not gain from the increase to $660. They would be allowed to obtain the aid on a basis of this year's expense figures rather than last year's, as is required by existing law.

The bill also would provide for a slight increase in "sparsity" aid for relatively small districts with property values under $18,000 a pupil.

The "sparsity" provision was advanced by Republicans who also extracted grudging Democratic approval of a section adding $4.3 million for special density aid to 43 medium-sized cities and large school districts. Heretofore, density aid has been granted only to the state's six largest cities, to help them with special problems arising from concentrations of school population.

Handicapped Widow in Doubt on One Stock

Q—"I have recently been widowed at an advanced age, and am greatly handicapped by arthritis. I thank God He has given me a mind and the determination to carry on. I own General Motors and Public Service Electric & Gas—both paying good dividends—and City Stores, which pays nothing. Would it do any good to write to them and ask why they do not pay dividends? What should I do with the stock?" J. C.

A—I should like first to offer you my sympathy on the loss of your husband and your own illness—and my congratulations on your stout spirit. City Stores is a far-flung merchandising enterprise, selling clothing, specialties and furnishings. The past earnings record has been uneven, but under new management the company has been doing much better, more than doubling its earnings in 1966.

The shares have acted well and are around their highest level since 1960. I would hold City Stores for further recovery, unless you require more income. In that case I would switch to Commercial Credit—which yields six per cent.

I do not advise you to write to the management, which seems to be doing a fine job by upgrading earnings. The company is restricted from paying dividends under present loan agreements.

Q—"What do you think of IBM now? Several of us in the office invested in these shares and have suffered losses ranging from $50 to $60 per share. Do you believe this stock has seen its heyday and that we should sell out before it goes lower?" J. D.

A—I should like to point out, if I may, that none of you has as yet suffered a loss, if you have not sold your stock. All shares fluctuate and IBM's percentage drop in the recent decline is relatively less than that of most high-priced growth stocks—such as Xerox. I would certainly retain my holdings.

Youth Fined $65 On Five Charges

Charged with five motor vehicle violations, Theodore DeGraff, 17, of 31 Third Avenue, city, today pleaded guilty before City Judge Hubert A. Richter and was fined a total of $65.

On May 20, the youth was ticketed by police. He was fined $25 on a charge of driving after dark with a junior operator's license and his license was revoked. A fine of $25 was imposed on a speeding charge, and Judge Richter fined the youth $5 on each of three other charges, two of passing stop signs and the third for passing a red traffic light. A charge of attempting to prevent an officer from performing his duties was dismissed.

Michael Fischer, 18, of 31 Miller's Lane, pleaded guilty to driving 47 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone on East Chester Street. He was fined $15. Ruby May Robinson, 45, city, was fined $10 on a speeding violation.

also begins to apply on that date.

For persons who became 65 since March 1 an enrollment period of seven months is provided. It begins three months before a person turns 65.

If a person fails to enroll as soon as he is eligible, the monthly insurance fee is increased 10 per cent for each full year that passes after the end of the initial period and before enrollment.

Not an Orphanage, Officials Insist

Children's Home Outlines Treatment for Problem Boys

By Hugh D. Reynolds
Freeman Staff Writer

The Children's Home on East Chester Street has often been mistakenly referred to as an orphanage. It is neither an orphanage nor a reform school. The purpose of the Home is to return its boys to an active useful life in society, not to institutionalize them.

The Home, which was organized in 1877, has undergone many changes in the makeup of its staff, patients and purpose.

Was an Orphanage

The Home originally was set up as an orphanage for wayward children, both boys and girls, that could not adjust to the rules of society. In those early days, little was understood as to why a child would rebel against society so the children of the home were separated from the society they could not cope with.

The home was strictly regimented with severe penalties for any infraction of the rules. For instance, meal time was observed in absolute silence. Anyone who broke that rule was forced to stand in the corner of the dining room for the duration of the meal.

Drastic Staff Changes

The staff has changed drastically over the years, especially in its numbers. One can imagine the type of person it took to keep 25 or 30 unruly youngsters in line under the former rules of the Home. A drill sergeant would have been a prime candidate for a job, for such were the duties of the staff 75 years ago. It was a common sight in Victorian Kingston to see the patients of the Children's Home marching in two's to school. Sundays they marched to and from church in the same formation.

Basic Idea Remains

Although in retrospect the methods of earlier administrators of the home may appear harsh and purpose-defeating, the basic premise was the same; to help the child instead of ignoring the problem and allowing police and reform schools deal with it.

The Kingston home was a forerunner of such care for children and had nothing from which to model its treatment methods. Due to increased research and education in the area of child psychology the home has patterned its methods after modern practices.

Full Staff at 20

Today the Home has a full time staff of 20 employees to work with the 32 children ages 8-14. The staff includes a psychologist, Irving Polashek; a psychiatrist, Dr. William Donahue, and a social worker, Stephen Varden.

The home's executive director, Lawrence Siewers, is an example of the professional level to which the staff has arrived. Siewers is a graduate of Syracuse University and holds a Master's Degree in social welfare from the New York State University College at Buffalo. He was formerly the assistant director of the children's home in Albany before coming to Kingston last year. He has 10 years experience in his field.

$200,000 Annual Budget
Siewers, who prefers to have the children of the Home referred to as clients instead of patients, said that the budget for the home last year was "about $200,000."

"This may sound prohibitive to some people he said, but look at it in this light. It costs about $6,000 to treat a youngster at the Home for a year. But it costs about $7,000 a year to place him in an institution and if a child were to get into very serious trouble and be imprisoned for the rest of his life you could imagine the cost. So while the cost of treating our clients may be expensive at first glance, the ultimate savings to society can be tremendous."

Siewers said that the treatment offered by the Home was two-pronged; to treat the mal-adjusted child and to educate his parents so when the child returns home he has a hope for a normal relationship with them. "Most of our clients come from broken homes or homes where the parents reject the child. It is of little use to treat the child and then have him return to the same environment that caused his problems. Unfortunately, parents can sometimes be impossible to deal with and when that occurs we recommend a foster home."

Lack of Foster Homes

Referring to foster homes, Siewers said, "We have a real problem in that area in that the Welfare Department hardly makes it economically feasible for a foster parent to a child. At present, in Ulster County, a foster parent receives $70 a month for each child. In New York it's about $100 a month but this is still very low."

"I would recommend much higher allowances to foster parents, Siewers said. Even $200 a month for each child wouldn't be too much when you consider that it costs $6,000 a year to treat the child at the Home. The foster parents we have are now doing a fine job overall, but we need many more. Perhaps the added money would act as an incentive to recruit foster parents."

A child is admitted for treatment in various ways but the usual chain of events starts from the pupil personnel service department at the local school where the child is causing a severe discipline problem. Then the child is referred to a mental health center which studies the case and makes its recommendations to the County Welfare Department. The county agency refers the child to the Children's Home where the staff determines if the child can be helped by the Home.

Speaking of the treatment at the Home, Siewers said, "We plan for discharge at the time of admittance. This doesn't mean that we dictate to the child what he should do with his life. We just make him more aware of his possibilities and his chances to succeed."

Urge Children to Stay in School

"We strongly urge each client to go as far in school as possible but in some cases, it is better for the child to learn a trade. We have had two of our clients graduate from college, and in fact, one came full cycle and today is a social worker himself."

"However, Siewers added, we are just as pleased with the child that leaves us and succeeds in school or in a job and adjusts to society. "As far as the treatment in the school goes, Siewers said, there are two ways to control a child, through fear or through understanding. Psychotherapy, by definition, is the reduction of fear."

Siewers added, "On very rare occasions, a member of the staff might strike a child through, perhaps, exasperation. It is not an easy job, working with these emotionally disturbed children. I would like to make it very clear that none of these children are retarded or juvenile delinquents. However, if a member of the staff strikes a child, for what ever reason, then we feel that we have failed and not the child."

History of Physical Punishment
"Most of these children have a history of physical punishment and brow beating and we don't intend to give it to them here."

"Our job is to help the child adjust to life by explaining to him and showing him just where he has been mistaken so that he can return to society as a useful and productive citizen."

EXPLAINS PROGRAMS AT CHILDREN'S HOME — Lawrence B. Siewers, executive director of the Children's Home, East Chester Street, explains some of the programs at the Home to Freeman staff writer Hugh Reynolds. Also on

Report Progress On Solving N.Y. Tax and Others

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Sources close to Gov. Rockefeller and leaders of the Legislature reported today that slow but sure progress was being made in resolving deadlocks over the New York City tax problem and other major issues.

Rockefeller conferred behind closed doors Tuesday with Republican legislative leaders, then met separately with Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia, the Legislature's top-ranking Democrat.

He told reporters that no final solutions had been reached but that the trend of negotiations was encouraging. The governor said it might be possible to clean up pending business within the next two weeks.

One nagging issue was cleared from the legislative calendar Tuesday when both houses gave swift approval to a bill that will increase state aid to the public schools by $102.3 million in the school year beginning next September.

Rockefeller's signature on the bi-partisan agreement was assured.

OP and Democratic leaders of the politically divided Legislature had argued over details of the bill for more than two months. The dispute was settled last week and the Legislature passed the measure unanimously Tuesday as a first order of business after returning from a six-day recess.

Much of the first day back on the job was occupied otherwise in behind-the-scenes conferences between Rockefeller and legislative leaders of both parties.

Travia saw the Republican governor first, in the morning, and discussed the New York City tax problem, as well as state aid to the public schools and the minimum wage in this state and replacing the Condon-Wadlin Law barring strikes by public employees.

In his private conferences with Rockefeller, Travia advocated the plan he had advanced last week as an alternative to New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's demands for $520 million in new or increased taxing powers.

Travia's plan is to scale down the Republican mayor's proposals for levying a city income tax, a new business-income tax and a higher tax on stock transfers.

At the same time, Travia renewed his insistence that there must be no increase in the city's 15-cent transit fare.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges and other Republicans have been insisting on a transit-fare increase as part of any revenue plan for the city.

Brydges told Rockefeller in his separate meeting that Upstate Republicans regarded a transit-fare boost as necessary to placate constituents who believed their tax money was being used to subsidize the city transit system. Bus fares Upstate generally are 25 cents.

Brydges argued that a city fare increase, engineered by the GOP, would tend to offset Upstate criticism of the Republican role in enacting the state's new medical-care program. Critics of the plan contend it is too liberal and will prove too costly.

In his later meeting with Travia, Rockefeller sought the speaker's approval for a GOP plan to appropriate $2 million to offset any extra costs to local governments in the first year of the medical care program.

Actor to Learn Real Circus Life Here on Monday

Adding more than usual interest of Kingston residents to the appearance here next Monday of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus, was the announcement that Albany-native, James Degan, rising young actor slated for a lead part in a major circus motion picture, will spend the day with the circus here in a first "atmosphere-soaking up" visit.

James Degan, 22-year-old son of the Earl J. Degans, Albion Road, Albany, and currently on military duty in Virginia, is a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York City and has a number of top credits already listed. His work in summer stock and in legitimate houses include appearances with Bert Parks in "Damn Yankees"; with Durwood Kirby in "Take Her, She's Mine"; with Ray Milland in "My Fair Lady"; Peggy Cass in "Bachelor Wife"; with Dan Dailey in "Guys and Dolls," and others.

In a unique coincidence, the young New Yorker played in small parts with another then unknown — Elizabeth Hartman, who was recently nominated for an Academy Award for her leading role in "A Patch of Blue" playing area theatres this week. While the circus picture is still in the embryo stages, the story is based on the life of Evelyn Currie — a lady wild animal trainer who moved into the circus world after a fantastic career of sensational activities that blazed into headlines in Florida federal court 20 years ago.

Young Degan will play Miss Currie's son in the movie and for the next several months — as military leave will permit—will travel with the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus to get the "feel" of the part.

The circus, now the largest, will be here for two performances, Monday, June 6 at the Dietz Stadium grounds. The big three ring show comes here under the auspices of Kingston Council No. 275, Knights of Columbus.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

8 QUESTIONS TEST YOUR ETIQUETTE KNOWLEDGE
The following questions have all been answered at length at one time or another in this column. Can you answer them? Why not test your knowledge (and perhaps that of your friends) before reading my answers.

1. Why are husband and wife not seated together at a dinner party?
2. Are engaged people ever invited one without the other?
3. Are candles ever included in the table setting when not lighted?
4. Is it ever proper to send printed or engraved "thank-you" cards?
5. (a) How do you address an envelope to a widow?
(b) How does she sign her name?
6. Are double-fold visiting cards intended to take the place of the regular single visiting cards?
7. When are gloves really necessary with evening clothes?
8. Is it proper to speak to strangers at private parties?

Answers to Etiquette Test

1. To seat them next to others stimulates interchange of new ideas, which makes social life worthwhile. After all, they can talk to each other any time.
2. If the party includes men and women, both members of the engaged couple are always invited.
3. Yes, candles are correctly part of a dinner or supper table setting whether lighted or not.
4. Only when sent by a public personage to acknowledge kindnesses of a great number of strangers.
5. (a) Mrs. John Smith. (b) Mary Jones Smith, exactly as though her husband were alive.
6. They are intended for long messages and invitations than those ordinarily written on visiting cards. They are not properly used as "calling cards."
7. At dinners of ceremony, formal balls and in a box at the opera.
8. Yes, the fact that everyone present is a friend of the hostess is considered sufficient reason to introduce oneself to whomever one pleases.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that we receive each week, we'll send a free copy of Emily Post's "Etiquette," revised by Elizabeth L. Post. The question chosen, and its answer, will be published in this column every Friday. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, and don't forget to include your name and address.

Rookie Casanova Tops Yanks; Indians, Orioles Gain Wins

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Casanova's tryst with the Washington Senators may outlast that perfect marriage between Ralph Houk and the New York Yankees.

Rookie Paul Casanova crossed up Houk and the Yankees Tuesday night with a three-run double pacing the Senators to a 5-1 victory over New York.

The 6-foot-4 catcher proved a perfect mate for left-hander Pete Richert, who beat the Yankees for the first time with a four-hitter and extended his current winning string to five.

The loss was the third for the punchless Yankees in their last four games and marked the fifth time they have dropped two straight since Houk replaced

Johnny Keane as manager 3½ weeks ago.

Casanova, a 24-year-old Cuban who walked into the Senators' minor league camp at Pensacola, Fla., three years ago and asked for a job, was called up from the minors last month when injuries sidelined regular catchers John Orsino and Doug Camilli.

He appeared in his first game on May 7, the same day Houk returned to the Yankee dugout, and hit at a .300 clip for two weeks. He went hitless, however, from May 23 until the fourth inning of Tuesday night's game, when his double snapped a scoreless tie and wrecked a Houk strategy move.

Jim King singled with one out in the fourth for the first hit off Mel Stottlemyre and, with two away, Dick Nen doubled. Houk then had Don Lock walk intentionally to get at Casanova.

Takes Strikeout Lead

The gambit backfired when Casanova ripped a liner inside the left field foul line, clearing the bases. The Yankees never caught up against Richert, who struck out eight for an American League-leading total of 82.

Baltimore trampled Minnesota 14-5, Kansas City ambushed Detroit 7-1, Boston nipped Chicago 1-0 and Cleveland outlasted California 7-5 in 17 innings in other AL games.

The Orioles rocked loser Camilo Pascual and three successors for 19 hits, including a three-run triple by Dave Johnson. Andy Etchebarren also drove in three runs with a homer and double.

Brooks Robinson doubled in two runs for the Orioles, boosting his league-leading RBI total to 42, while Luis Aparicio hit a two-run homer and Sam Bowens a two-run single.

Kansas City's Fred Talbot, given ninth inning help by reliever Lew Krausse, checked the Tigers while Danny Cater, with three hits, and Mike Hershberger, with two, paced the Athletics' attack. Cater and Hershberger each drove in two runs and Larry Stahl cracked a homer off loser Bill Monbouquette.

The Red Sox snapped Chicago's shutout string at 30 innings when Conigliaro homered off Joel Horlen in the second, then held off the White Sox behind southpaw Dick Stigman, who scattered seven hits.

Cleveland broke a 4-4 tie in the 17th on Pedro Gonzalez' bases-loaded single, a wild pitch by Dean Chance and a bases-loaded walk. Steve Hargan, who blanked the Angels from the seventh to the 17th, when he gave up a run and needed last-out help from Luis Giant, was the winner.

Jose Cardenal, who had five hits, pulled the Angels even at 4-4 with a two-run homer in the seventh. Chico Salmon hit a three-run homer for the Indians, who had lost four in a row.

The Angels' Rick Reichardt struck out six times, tying the major league record for an extra-inning game set by Carl Weiland of the 1913 St. Louis Browns and matched by Don Hoak of Pittsburgh in 1956.

Ron Hansen Lost For the Season

By JOE MOOSHL

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox, struggling to get back into the first division, saw their pennant hopes all but vanish Tuesday when they learned shortstop Ron Hansen will be out for the season.

Hansen is suffering from a ruptured spinal disc and must undergo surgery, according to Dr. Joseph Coyle, team physician.

Hansen, 28, injured his left ankle opening day and his leg grew progressively more painful as he continued to play. On May 14 he left the Sox line-up and was placed on the emergency disabled list.

Rookie Lee Elia was recalled from Indianapolis to replace the lanky veteran whose average had dipped to .176 for 23 games.

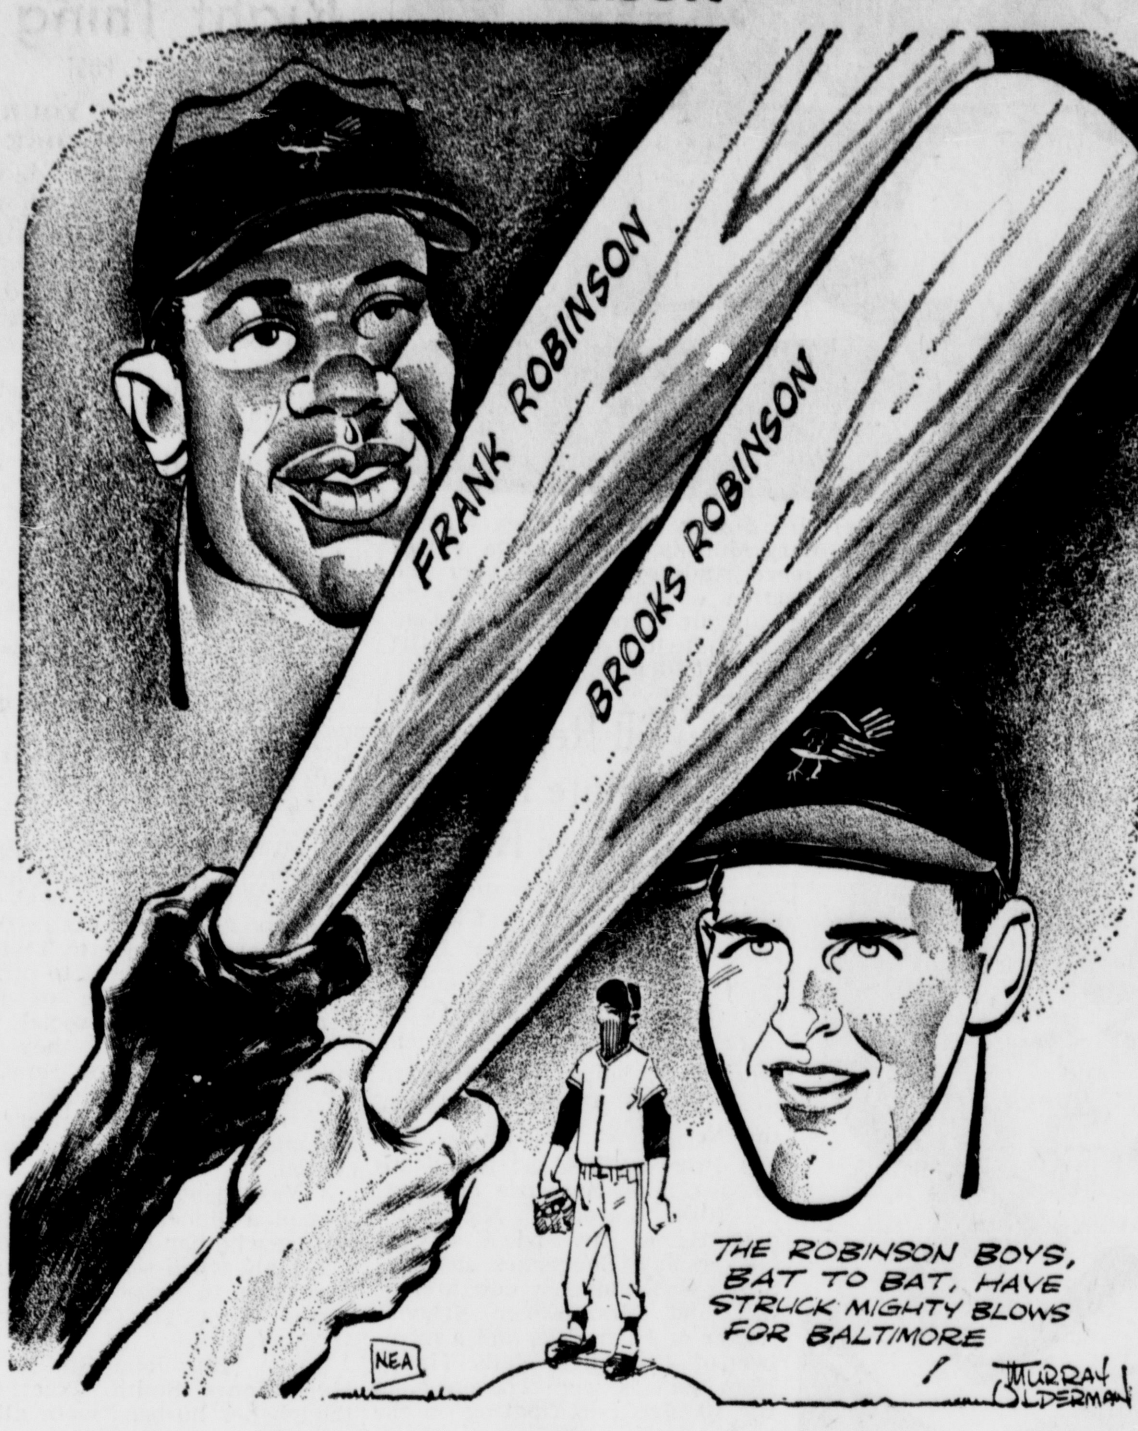

The disclosure of the injury stunned the Sox but didn't come as a complete surprise.

"We had some idea Ron's injury might be of a serious nature," said General Manager Ed Short. "But we wanted to make sure before making any announcement."

Short said Elia was brought up to help utility man Al Weis at the position. Short also said that was the reason the Sox grabbed infielder Wayne Causey from Kansas City for outfielder Danny Cater last weekend.

"Cause, Elia and Weis all can play shortstop," said Short, who added he wasn't counting on any deals to help the club.

Marichal Scores 10th, 5-3; LA Stays Close With 6-2 Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal was tired. His elbow was hurting. His control was off, and he gave up the astounding total of three walks. His slider and screwball weren't working.

He won. The high-kicking right-hander, despite the fatigue and ailing arm and off-form pitching, ran his perfect record to 10-0 Tuesday night in San Francisco's 5-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Marichal managed to double home the Giants' first two runs, strike out 10, blank the Reds through six innings, and record his ninth complete game in 11 starts. But he was tagged for two homers by Leo Cardenas, in the seventh and ninth, and his earned run average zoomed from 0.59 to 0.80.

As for his three walks, compared to eight in his previous 92 innings this season, two came in succession in the fourth inning and loaded the bases.

"I tried various pitches, but I couldn't get the plate in that inning," he commented. "I don't think rookie pitchers do as bad as I did sometime."

A Two-Run Double

Marichal weathered that jam neatly — by striking out John Edwards. And in the next inning, he clipped loser Sammy Ellis for the two-run double and scored himself on Tito Fuentes' single. Jim Hart made it 4-0 with a homer in the seventh, giving Marichal the edge he needed to survive Cardenas' late-game slugging.

By winning the Giants kept their National League lead at 2½ games over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who made it seven victories in their last eight games with a 6-2 decision over Atlanta.

Elsewhere in the NL — St. Louis won its fourth straight, beating Houston 3-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Ray Washburn and Hal Woodeshick. Bill White led Philadelphia over the New York Mets 6-4, and the Chicago Cubs nipped Pittsburgh 2-1.

Lou Johnson's triple and Al Ferrara's two-run double sparked the Dodgers to a 3-0 first-inning lead over the Braves. Pitcher Claude Osteen homered in the fourth, but the Los Angeles southpaw left in the seventh with a blister in his pitching hand and Phil Regan finished.

Washburn allowed the Astros three hits before tiring and coming out in the sixth inning, and Woodeshick gave up two more. The Cards got their three runs in the fifth after two outs. Bob Tolan singled in the first run and scored all the way from first — behind Lou Brock — on Curt Flood's looping single to center.

White broke a 4-4 tie between the Phils and Mets with a fifth-inning homer, then drove in another Philadelphia run in the ninth with a single — his third hit of the game. Ray Herbert was the winner, going 6-13 in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings in relief. Dick Stuart and Johnny Lewis hit Met homers.

The Cubs netted both their runs off Pirate lefty Bob Veale in the fifth. Chicago pitcher Ernie Broglio started the rally with a double, then took third on a wild pitch. Adolfo Phillips was hit by a pitch, Joe Amalfitano's fly cashed in Broglio. Phillips stole second and Ron Santo stroked a run-scoring single.

Marlboro Still Alive, Beats New Paltz, 7-0

Richard (Rod) Aurigemma hurled a six-hitter and the red hot Marlboro Dukes kept their UCAL pennant hopes alive with a 7-0 win Tuesday at New Paltz.

Highland, the league leader, plays today at Ontario. If the Indians win, then Friday's Marlboro-Highland tussle at New Paltz will decide the championship. A Highland victory today means that Marlboro will have to win Friday to force a playoff.

Cadet Golf, Track, Baseball Teams Finish Their Seasons

WEST POINT, N. Y. — Three Army teams will close out their 1966 seasons at Annapolis this Saturday, meeting the Midshipmen in the highlight of the annual spring series. The golf and track squads are scheduled for morning engagements, while the baseball team seeks the Eastern League championship in its afternoon game at Farragut Field.

In the annual Army-Navy rivalry, which takes into account fall and winter contests, the Cadets hold a 6-4-2 margin. Victories in two of five clashes this Saturday (lacrosse and tennis will be held at West Point) will clinch the year's series for Army.

The 10 a. m. track meet finds Navy (4-1) favored enen though Army finished ahead of the Midshipmen in the Heptagonal. Navy power in the sprints, hurdles and relays will have to be offset by Army performances by captain Rance Farrell, Greg Camp, Jon Nolan and Jim Warner in the distances from 440 through the two-mile. Warner will be called upon to double in the mile and two-mile.

The Cadets figure to have the edge in the field events, although Navy has turned in the best efforts in the high jump, broad jump and javelin. Leroy Outlaw in the triple jump. Steve Kujawski in the pole vault, Jack Graham and Larry Hart in the hammer and Dan Seebart, a double competitor in the shot put and discus, represent Army's best.

Similar Records

In the other morning encounter, Army and Navy tee off at 10 o'clock on the Navy golf course. The team records are quite similar.

Clay Spars Six

CAIRO (AP) — It was more like a comic show when Cassius Clay, the world heavyweight champion, sparred six rounds against three Egyptian boxers at the Gexira Sporting Club Tuesday night.

Most of the 5,000 spectators laughed and cheered Clay's tactics. Many of them beat drums and danced to the music of bamboo tubes.

Tax Exemptions For Elderly Left To Local Option

By WILLIAM S. STEVENS
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A single word has been a major factor in a measure that would permit local governments to grant tax exemptions of 50 per cent to homeowners over 65 with incomes of less than $3,000 a year.

That word is "permissive," and it was heard constantly Tuesday as the Assembly gave the bill its final legislative endorsement and sent it to Gov. Rockefeller.

Exemption to Elderly
Supporters noted that, although the bill would allow the tax exemptions to the older citizens, it left it up to the local governments to grant the reduced real-estate rates — after a public hearing.

The bill would exclude over-65 homeowners if a child attending a public school lived in the home. It also specifies that an applicant for the reduced rate must live in the home for at least five years before a tax exemption could be granted.

The measure was passed, 131-15.

The Assembly's approval was one of the major developments Tuesday as the Senate and Assembly returned to work after a six-day recess. In action on other bills:

—The Senate passed, 51-8, a measure that would permit courts or the State Parole Board to issue certificates to first offenders that would allow them to retain or regain certain privileges denied under present law. Included would be the right to vote and the privilege of applying for licenses to practice medicine, pharmacy, dentistry or other professions requiring a license.

Aid Ambulance Drivers
—The Assembly gave final legislative approval to a measure that would permit ambulance drivers to help injured persons without danger of liability to the injured person suffered further harm as a result of the treatment.

—A measure that would expand from seven to nine the membership on the State Commission of Human Rights gained passage in the Assembly and was sent to the Senate. Republicans cast the negative votes as the bill was approved, 122-20.

—Legislation that would establish the required butterfat content in milk be 3.4 per cent was passed in the Senate and sent to the Assembly. At the same time, the Assembly defeated a measure that would have required stores to obtain a milk dealers' license if they sold milk.

—A proposal that would require public schools, beginning with seventh graders, to give instructions in the nature of habit-forming drugs and narcotics and the drugs' effects on the system was passed in the Senate.

Auto Safety Provisions
—The Assembly passed a measure that would require that automobiles be equipped with padded sun visors and visor holders, beginning with 1968 models. The measure had been approved earlier by the Senate.

—A bill that would provide about $1.2 million in additional aid to 49 communities to assist them in setting up community mental health facilities gained Senate endorsement and was sent to the Assembly. The measure would increase from 50 per cent to 75 per cent the state's share of the local unit's first $100,000 expenditure for the mental-health program.

The Assembly approved a measure that would allow the state to spend to $477,000 to acquire "Oleana," the 300-acre estate in Columbia County once owned by artist Frederick E. Church. The Education Department would operate the property as an historic site. The measure was sent to the Senate.

Cites Big Question
The "big question" considered by the Mayor is, "Are Cities Governable?"

GEMINI-9

A chase of another satellite, a record spacewalk and the first practical test of space rescue techniques are in the Gemini-9 flight plan of astronauts Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan. It starts off as a repeat of the Gemini-8 flight, cut short in March. Again, an Agena target vehicle (1) is scheduled to blast off first. If all goes well, the Gemini launch (2) will come one hour, 39 minutes and nine seconds later. The timetable calls for rendezvous and linkup (3) with the Agena on the third orbit, four to five hours after launch—cutting at least an hour off the linkup time of Gemini-8. Then begins a series of experiments to add a significant new chapter to space flight history before splashdown in the Atlantic recovery area 345 miles east of Cape Kennedy, 45 orbits and three days after launching.

Cernan: Two-hour, 25-minute spacewalk; meteorite collection experiments on Gemini adapter and Agena.

Stafford: Undocks, moves off 120 feet from Agena. Cernan: Crosses to Agena on 125-foot tether.

Cernan: Hovers motionless 30 feet from the capsule. Stafford: Maneuvers toward him for "Rescue."

Both: Docking, separation practice. Agena: Power started, stopped several times; maneuvered into parking orbit to await use as target on later Gemini mission.

Camp Wawayanda Gives Invitation To Kingston 'Y'

Members of the Kingston YMCA have been invited to attend Camp Wawayanda of the Frost Valley Association, YMCA which serves both Boys and Girls and is the second oldest organized camp in the United States, founded in 1902.

Its new location is 2200 acres of land, which was formerly the Frostmann property, just south of Big Indian. The camp has full facilities which include boating, swimming, horseback riding, archery, crafts, nature study and all the other wonderful things which make camping a memorable experience for boys and girls.

All of the cabin counselors are in college or are college graduates. The cabins, in which the campers stay, are equipped with individual showers and toilets. Parents are invited to call Leon Van Heusen at the Kingston "Y" for further information and registration cards. The second period of the Boys' Camp is completely filled, but there are openings in the other three periods.

Camp Wawayanda also has two specialized programs for boys 13 years old and over. One is known as the construction engineers; the other the trail blazers.

The construction engineers have a broad program in outdoor education which includes building of lean-tos, develop interest in automotive mechanics and in general learning to apply, in an outdoor setting, the formal education they are receiving in school.

The trail blazers, restricted to 14 year olds who are excellent swimmers and weigh over 110 pounds, take a one month trip through Quebec in the heart of some of the finest fishing country in the world. There are two openings still available in the first period, but several openings in the second period which terminates Aug. 20.

Asks Continuing Search for New City Tax Sources

"The people must be educated to accept the fact that a continuing search must be made to supplement real estate taxes as a source of revenue," Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan said today in a progress report at the end of his fifth month in office. Mayor Garrahan contended that the two per cent payroll tax mentioned by him in January should be adopted, one per cent for the county and one per cent for school districts. He added that the Ulster County Board of Supervisors should consider the Hotel and Motel Tax as a source of revenue.

Received 38 Letters
In the past month, the Mayor said, he has received 38 letters of thanks for advising the citizens of tax situations and improvements in various wards. He noted that two letters contained criticism.

"The lighting of the Academy Green has been noticed by citizens throughout the County and State," Mayor Garrahan said. Commenting on financial situations, the Mayor said, "Tax free property is another drain on cities the size of Kingston."

Noting that the Board of Supervisors will need extra money to meet their needs, the Mayor said, "The Ulster County Community College and the new state Medicare Program will be very costly."

Cites Big Question
The "big question" considered by the Mayor is, "Are Cities Governable?"

Commenting on that Garrahan said, "the real issue facing all of the mayors in this state, the answer in New York State, and, in fact, throughout the country is, No, unless ways and means are developed to compensate for the drain on funds by Federal and State Governments."

Outline Black Arts Probe Details On Misuse of $2 Million U.S. Aid

EDITOR'S A 13-member committee of Harlem's antipoverty agency has completed an investigation that accuses the agency of "wrongful acts" in the use of $2 million in federal funds. The study, which has not been made public, is critical of many of the activities of the controversial Black Arts theater. The following story, compiled by a team of Associated Press reporters, gives details of the investigation for the first time.

NEW YORK (AP)—Rejected twice, Harlem's controversial Black Arts theater mysteriously tapped federal antipoverty funds on the third try and spent at least $115,000 on cultural programs including "hate-white" plays in filthy language for youth in the streets, a special investigating team has reported.

Black Arts financing was choked off last Sept. 7 just short of midnight in its 10-week stand. Sargent Shriver of the Office of Economic Opportunity later called it one of the "disappointing" of the antipoverty campaign, and said "no federal dollars should have gone to the Black Arts."

Wrongful Acts Stressed
A special study singled out numerous "wrongful acts" involving not only Black Arts but also another HARYOU-ACT project in the $2 million crash program to keep Harlem cool last summer.

Among examples cited were diversion of youth workers and supplies from public "vest-pocket park" projects to private construction, kickbacks of pay, a revolving open-end petty cash fund without controls, unauthorized spending, lavish use of rented cars and station wagons, and funding of imposter "ministers" with fake "churches" and "day-care" centers.

The study was made by an internal investigations committee of the HARYOU-ACT board of directors, set up last Oct. 11. The report was received by the board but has not been made public. A copy of principal sections was obtained by an Associated Press reporter team.

The committee was headed by Samuel R. Pierce Jr., former New York judge and member of various state and city boards who now is with a Park Avenue law firm. Its 12 other members included two other lawyers, two clergymen, three educators, a physician and an architect.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan began his own investigation last fall.

Funds Refused
"Records show that the Black Arts theater was turned down for funding as part of the crash program and that OEO had also refused to grant it funds," the Pierce committee report said.

"Had the board of directors been keen and observant," it added, "Black Arts could not have entered PUL (Project Uplift, the summer program) in the circuitous manner in which it did."

"The Black Arts theater was made to appear to be operating as 'day camps,' the report continued, "with a condition which states that only $2,800 worth of 'consumable goods' was to be provided."

But that much was spent for just three items, the report said—$1,200 on men's suits, $800 for rent of a tape recorder and $800 for a rented living room suite.

$1,280 Were Spent
It added: "From documents in our possession, Black Art spent at least 90 times the sum of $1,280."

That would be $115,200. Livingston Wingate, executive director of HARYOU-ACT, said in a recent "reconstruction" of summer program spending that Black Arts had cost $95,150.

The Pierce report continued: "Purchases included women's stockings, shawls, fur pieces, men's clothing, men's shoes, four gravity knives, three blank pistols, gallons of house paint, electrical light fixtures, etc.

"There were hundreds of Black Arts purchase orders and requests unaccounted for."

Petty Cash Revolved
"Black Arts was also given a 'revolving petty-cash fund' of $100. There were no limits as to how often this 'fund' could be replenished, within what period, or for what items it could be spent."

"Black Arts was also supplied with typewriters, calculating machines and other office equipment which to date have not been accounted for."

"It appears that many of these items will never be recovered."

"We discovered that some 55 vehicles, pleasure sedans, station wagons, trailer trucks, etc., had been rented to the Black Arts theater. We could not pinpoint who justified the need for, or authorized the use of those vehicles."

Headed by Playwright
The Black Arts theater then was headed by Negro poet-playwright LeRoi Jones, who left Greenwich Village to propagandize black nationalism in Harlem.

He founded the Black Arts repertory theater-school in April, 1965, with a corps of about 15 actors and 20 writers, sculptors and painters.

"I don't see anything wrong with having white people," Jones thundered. "Harlem must be taken from the beast and its sovereignty as a black nation."

The theater channeled Jones' antiwhite bitterness into popular street-corner drama, with whites cast as villains. In one murderous travesty on the old Jack Benny radio program called "Jello," the travel-voiced Negro chauffeur Rochester winds up killing all the whites in the cast, including Benny.

List Minus Factors
The Pierce committee listed as "minus" factors in the Black Arts plays:

"1. The use of inexcusable language under the guise of 'comedy expressions' which resulted in community protest.

"2. The unusual attack upon the role of the clergy of the Christian churches of the Harlem community, both past and present, was resented by the community."

"There was a general disregard for the fact that in the summer a vast majority of the youngsters who would view these performances would not be mature enough to distinguish between filth and community expression in the language used by the performers," the report commented.

CHURCH UNION?
THE METHODIST CHURCH	10,304,200
PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CHURCH	3,328,600
UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE U.S.A.	3,292,200
UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST	2,067,200
CHRISTIAN CHURCHES (DISCIPLES OF CHRIST)	1,920,800
AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH	1,166,300
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE U.S. (SOUTHERN)	944,700
EVANGELICAL UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH	750,500
TOTAL	23,774,500

Eight major Protestant denominations are moving cautiously toward union in a church which would have some 24 million members. Groundwork for the union, first proposed eight years ago, is being laid by church leaders in the Consultation on Church Union which has now agreed on a set of "first principles" covering matters of faith, Bible interpretation and church sacraments. The principles must now be approved by each denomination, a process which is expected to take many more years.

Contenders List Plans to Improve Albany Regime

NEW YORK (AP)—The four leading contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor addressed 1,500 persons at a forum in Brooklyn Tuesday night and outlined their proposals for improvement of the state government.

They had described their proposals in statements made public prior to the forum, one of a series being held around the state.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who suggested the forums, introduced the speakers.

Various Proposals
Among the various proposals were these:

—New York City Council President Frank D. O'Connor, who has not made a formal announcement of his candidacy, said that if he were governor he would create a State Department of Job Opportunity and Labor Relocation to help relieve unemployment by getting "people to jobs and jobs to people."

—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. said he favors a major shift toward emphasis on preventive medicine in the state's health programs. If elected governor, he said, he would propose a network of regional health maintenance clinics affiliated with outstanding teaching hospitals.

—Nassau County Executive Eugene H. Nickerson said that as governor he would seek to establish an office of public protector to "guard the individual against inefficiency, maladministration, arrogance and abuse on the part of governor." He noted that he had appointed such an official in Nassau county on an informal basis Tuesday.

Would Help Consumer
—Howard J. Samuels, industrialist from Upstate Canandaigua, proposed a Department of the Consumer in the state government to protect "the confused consumer against the wiles of the unscrupulous, fast-buck businessman."

Samuels said that as governor he would concentrate his efforts on "the special problems of the low-income consumer."

The forum was the second of a series being sponsored by the Democratic party to help pick the strongest candidate against Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in the November election.

The gubernatorial candidate will be nominated at the Democratic State Convention at Buffalo Sept. 7 and 8. The party is not committed to giving the nomination to one of those who participate in the forums.
